Interesting Crime Age.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

IF MEN are welcome in heaven in proportion to their deeds on earth, there will be a special committee of welcome to meet John D. Rockefeller, Jr., when he arrives. May it be 50 years hence.

YESTERDAY President Angell of Yale University announced a gift of $2,000,000 from Mr. Rockefeller for expansion of Yale's medical department, the building of a laboratory, etc.

MR. ROCKEFELLER is the only man that has given away HUNDREDS OF MILLIONS OF DOLLARS.

Since the people do not know enough to use their unlimited resources for their own welfare, they are fortunate in having intelligent men that collect hundreds of millions and spend them usefully for education, health, scientific research, combatting disease, etc.

IN CHICAGO Coroner Bundesen wants to know who the gentlemen were that stood seven gangsters with their faces to the wall, "frisked" them, then killed them all by machine gun fire.

The coroner is warned that if he continues his tactless efforts to convict the guilty, he will be "bumped off." When Chicago gangsters say it, they mean it.

THE late Billy McGlory, of New York, divekeeper and well informed, long ago said to two young New York Sun reporters, "You boys ought to get a trotting horse and buggy and spend the afternoons on the road among the roadhouses. Not a week that you wouldn't get a couple of hundred dollars for not seeing what you might see."

AT Laredo, Tex., Harry Williams, newspaper reporter, 24 years old, is shot dead, for seeing things that border smugglers did not want him to see.

He knew too much about smuggling whisky, drugs, Chinese and other laborers across the border, and will write no more reports.

TEXAS bankers pay $5,000 in genuine cash to anybody that kills a bank robber.

Several have been accused of killing and collecting rewards on gentlemen that were not robbers at all, others are accused of "framing" would-be burglars, arranging with them to rob a bank, and killing them in the process. A sure and "lawful" way of getting money.

IT IS not likely that the rewards will be given up, for the Texas bankers say they pay.

It makes bandits uncomfortable to know that anybody who shoots a hole through them will get $5,000, and Texas bank robberies have diminished.

YOU enter, press a button in a dark room and light floods the room. We are used to that miracle. But this one is new. An airplane approaches a dark landing field, sounds a loud siren. Sound waves, acting on a mechanical guard or robot, immediately turn on the lights, flood the field and make landing safe. And no human being plays any part, except the pilot with his siren.

THE next step will be wireless power sent from the earth to airplanes in the air. Then there will be no need of refueling in flight, no need of a plane coming down. And that perhaps is not far away.

The New York Central Railroad installs radio apparatus on all its long freight trains. The men in the red caboose at the far end will be able to talk through the air to the engineer, who can talk to them. This interests those old enough to remember when brakemen, at risk of their lives, raced along the icy tops of wooden cars in winter, jamming on hand brakes when the whistle blew.

ONE difficulty about holding up interest rates is the abundance of money, with people that have it eager to lend it.

This forces call money down to 6 per cent, in spite of virtuous financiers seeking to protect the little people against themselves by making them pay 12 per cent on loans.

THE grand jury in New York, contemplating prohibition here that does not prohibit, demands that buying liquor be made a crime.

If those that buy from bootleggers were put in jail bootlegging would fall away.

Eminently "respectable" men are willing to treat the Constitution with contempt. But going to jail would be another matter, and being blackmailed by bootleg messengers would be annoying.

SIX DEAD, 200 HURT IN WRECK

PEORIA, Ill., Feb. 20.—(AP.)—At least six miners were killed in a train wreck today and about 200 others were injured, 10 so seriously they may die. The accident occurred near Hollis, Ill., five miles south of here. Four cars of an 11-car Peoria Terminal Railway train carrying 900 miners went over a 25-foot embankment.

One of the cars caught fire from an overturned stove, but the fire was extinguished before it spread to other coaches. One miner probably was fatally burned when he was knocked unconscious and fell across the stove. He was rescued by fellow workers.

BOUND FOR MINES

The train was bound for the Crescent coal mines, 15 miles south of here.

Engineer F. O. Fisher, of Peoria, said he was proceeding between 12 and 15 miles an hour and did not know anything was wrong until he glanced over his shoulder and saw the cars bouncing along the rails and tumbling over the embankment.

He cut his engine from the train and ran to Hollis where help was summoned, doctors, ambulances and nurses coming from Peoria and from the Martinville State Hospital.

Within a few minutes scores of wives and children of the miners were on the scene, some of them only half dressed braving the five-below-zero weather.

OTHER CARS DERAILED

Beside the four cars that rolled down the enbankment, two other coaches left the tracks. A few passengers in these coaches were injured. Officials of the railway attributed the accident to a broken "fish plate," the iron bar holding the rails together.

The miners said there were from 60 to 75 passengers in each coach and some of the coaches had a coal stove in each end.

Jim Clark, an ederly miner, fell across one of these stoves and was dragged from the car by a fellow miner, his clothes a mass of flames, and rolled in the snow un-

GIANT RAIL MERGER ASKED

High points of the proposed railroad consolidation before the Interstate Commerce Commission.

1—Years of negotiation between the four leading eastern railroad systems have failed to create a consolidation plan.

2—The Van Sweringens of Cleveland, and the B. & O. have completed a plan.

3—They are putting it before the Interstate Commerce Commission to get a definite "yes" or "no" on what railroads can be included in their two systems.

4—If the plan goes through it will put an end to the new trunk line which the Taplin interests are trying to build around the Pittsburgh and West Virginia.

5—No important change will take place in terminals here except that the Pittsburgh and West Virginia will be jointly owned by the four leading carriers.

The Van Sweringen interests, of Cleveland, have joined hands with the Baltimore and Ohio in an effort to form two giant railroad systems, each to operate over 13,000 miles of track and to cover territories which would make it possible for them to compete on a equal basis with the Pennsylvania and the New York Central.

The plans for the two systems were made known in petitions filed with the Interstate Commerce Commission yesterday. The two proposals dove tail into each other perfectly.

BITTER FIGHT LIKELY

It is considered pratically certain that the Pennsylvania and the New York Central will be bitterly opposed to the new systems and

RUM SALES TO GIRLS CHARGED

Complaints that students at Peabody High School, including girls, were being sold moonshine in East End speakeasies brought the raid on nine places, District Attorney Samuel H. Gardner declared today. He did not reveal the source of the complaints.

The raids were accomplished with the aid of students, the detectives reported.

BOYS MAKE "BUYS"

Boys, closely watched, were sent to the places to buy the contraband stuff and later they pointed out the places to the raiding sleuths, it was declared by Gardner. The "buys" are being used as the basis for prosecution of the proprietors. The raids were made yesterday and included confectionery stores, saloons and restaurants.

RETURN TO RAIDS

After raiding four places in the afternoon the sleuths returned last night and raided five more, charging all the proprietors with violating the Snyder act.

The persons arrested: Frank Tallento, 6308 Station street; Leo Risele, 6322 Addis way; Joseph Santori, 232 Collins avenue; Joseph Lemartz, 716 Larimer avenue; Wilson Chuvin, 6330 Marchand street; Joe Lapice, 6327 Shakespeare street; Leonard Macci, 125 Carver street; Adolph Polombo, 6214 Broad street; Vernon Hutchison, 107 South St. Clair street.

F. L. Matteson, principal of the school, said today that he knew nothing of such complaints, but would investigate the situation.

BLAME COMPANY IN TUBE PANIC

NEW YORK, Feb. 20.—(INS.)—Out of all the horror that 1,500 persons underwent for two hours in the Hudson tube fire panic, official action came swiftly today, placing the blame on the Hudson and Manhattan Railroad Company.

Tracks strewn with papers and grease resulted in the fire over which a seven-car train stalled, the transit commission reported today after an all-night investigation. The commission issued orders to the railroad company for an immediate cleanup of the tube.

That the train was brought to a stop directly opposite the flames in the tube because of an error by a platform guard who pulled the emergency cord, was admitted by the company.

The report pointed out that sparks from brake shoes or a lighted cigaret tossed to the roadbed might have been the direct cause of the fire. The flames, after the train had come to a sudden stop, caused a short circuit, the commission found.

Passengers suffered from the effects of smoke and fumes. Many were cut and bruised in the rush from the stalled train. Two hundred were taken to hospitals where 15 remained today, six of them in a critical condition. Hundreds were treated at the scene of the disaster.

RIVER TERMINAL PLANNED HERE

The city of Pittsburgh is planning to build a giant wharf terminal that would be expected to boom river traffic, Public Works Director Edward G. Lang announced today.

The terminal would be on the Ohio River below the Manchester Bridge at Shore avenue and Sporat way, North Side.

Lang announced the plans today after a meeting of city engineers, members of the Coal Exchange and representatives of river interests.

Present plans, which will be given to Council when minor details have been ironed out, call for a warehouse 40x500 feet, a wall 50 feet in from the harbor line, and adjoining railroad yard capable of holding 90 cars, a great float for boats to tie up to and an escalator to move small cargo.

The city owns the ground on which it is proposed to build the terminal but, if the depot meets success, it may be necessary to buy adjoining property for enlargement. Lang said an estimate of the cost had not been made.

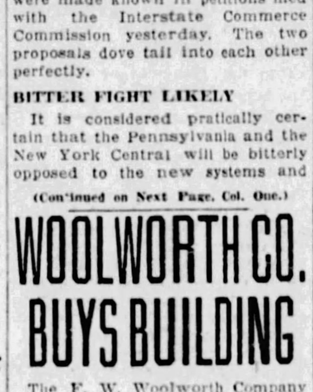
CONVICTS AT LARGE

JAMES A. WALDEN



WILLIAM W. YOUNG

The two convicts still at large since their escape from Ohio State Penitentiary, Columbus, from which they sawed their way with Pat McDermott. Young is a Marietta murderer and lifer and Walden a Cleveland robber.

M'DERMOTT IN CELL AGAIN

COLUMBUS, O., Feb. 20.—(AP.)—Three of five convicts who sawed their way to freedom through the bars of Ohio State Penitentiary yesterday were captured and returned to solitary confinement early today, less than 24 hours after their escape.

Pat McDermott, gunman of the Don R. Mellett slaying in Canton and Mike Jacko, who murdered a Cleveland butcher, were cornered in a power house tower five miles north of here at midnight and captured by J. S. Crumley and Charles Williams, Franklin County deputy sheriffs.

ROSSO CAUGHT

Joe Rosso, Cleveland robber, was taken a few hours later at a farm south of here by Deputy Sheriff John Guy. McDermott and Jacko are serving life terms.

The others sought were William W. Young, sentenced to life for a murder of a Marietta (O.) policeman, and James A. Walden, Cleveland robber reputedly wanted in Philadelphia for murder.

AUTO THEFT DOWNFALL

Rosso was captured after he and a companion had been driven from a general store near the farm where he was captured. The owner of the store heard the men as they discarded their prison uniforms for overalls from his shelves and opened fire. He said he believed he wounded the man with Rosso and a posse took up his trail.

McDermott and Jacko were first sighted by Charles Gardner, who overtook them in a truck after they had stolen his automobile.

He notified authorities, who trailed them to a power house in a rock quarry. The deputies found them crouching at the head of a stairway, and captured them without difficulty.

Warden Preston E. Thomas fixed direct responsibility for the escape on one of two guards assigned to watch the cell tiers. The guards, Charles Shivley and J. B. Isaacs, were questioned by Warden Thomas and other state officials assigned to investigate the escape by Gov. Myers Y. Cooper.

COAL POLICE PROBE ASKED

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Feb. 20.—Lost in a blizzard and overcome by the sub-zero temperature in the mountains near here, Frank A. Geers, farmer, of Glendale, Venango County, was found unconscious in a cattle shed near Jumonville today.

Searchers, led by County Detective A. A. Downing, found Geers after following obscure tracks in the snow. His hands and feet were frozen, it is believed.

After being revived at a nearby farmhouse, Geers told his rescuers he had left Uniontown early yesterday afternoon in his automobile en route to the home of J. H. Hileman, in Jumonville. He got as far the Summit Hotel. On account of rought roads he left his car on the road and started to walk.

Overtaken by a blizzard Geers lost his way, he said. He wandered off the road, bewildered. He noticed the cattle shed and mistook it for a house. With little shelter he was overcome by the cold. He remembered nothing he said, from about 8 o'clock last night until found today.

NORTH SIDE MAN GETS JAIL TERM IN RUM CRUSADE

SCHOOL BOND TAX REPEAL OPPOSED

HARRISBURG, Pa., Feb. 20.—Gov. Fisher is not disposed to repeal the tax of four mills on school bonds of the City of Pittsburgh.

He said so today when Marcus Aaron, president of the Pittsburgh Board of Education, came here to ask him to sign the bill of Senator W. D. Mansfield, McKeesport, repealing the tax on school district indebtedness for state and county purposes. The Mansfield bill has already been passed by the Senate.

The tax amounts to a considerable item in the annual budget of the Pittsburgh school district. Gov. Fisher said he has already promised "first consideration" to repeal of the anthracite tax if any tax reduction is possible.

Repeal of the tax on school bonds, he said, would mean "either a reduction in appropriation to school districts or imposing some other tax to make good the revenue lost by the repeal."

"To remit taxation of such bonds would be unjust as it would take the tax securities that ought to be taxed," Gov. Fisher said.

The governor explained that as a rule the school districts offer to pay the tax instead of making the bondholders liable for it, in order to be able to sell their bonds at lower rates of interest. Many of the districts have been delinquent in payment of the tax and have made no effort to collect it from bondholders because the districts have obligated themselves to pay the tax.

RAILROADS PLAN BIG MERGERS

that they will seek an entirely different grouping of roads.

Both plans seek to eliminate the proposed Pittsburgh & West Virginia trunk line to the Atlantic Seaboard which is sought by the Tapiin group. This road along with several other short lines in the Pittsburgh district would be jointly owned by the four principal systems.

The Baltimore & Ohio requested permission to purchase the Buffalo, Rochester & Pittsburgh, the Detroit, Toledo & Ironton, the Chicago, Indianapolis & Louisville, the Wabash, the Ann Arbor, and the Buffalo & Susquehanna railroads. It also asked permission for complete acquisition of the Western Maryland, the Reading, the Central Railroad of New Jersey and the Lehigh & Hudson River.

13,814 MILE

With the completion of its purchasing program, the petition said, the Baltimore and Ohio would come into existence as a corporation operating 13,814 miles of trunk line railroad with a capital investment of $2,192,000,000.

$2,500,000,000 INVESTMENT

The commission was asked to find that the public interest would allow the grouping or unification of the Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad, a main Van Sweringen line, with the Erie, the Nickel Plate, the Pere-Marquette and Hocking Valley systems, all now Van Sweringen owned. In addition, the Wheeling and Lake Erie, only partly Van Sweringer owned, and the following independent lines, the Virginian, the Lackawana, the Bessemer and Lake Erie, the Pittsburgh and Shawmut, the Pittsburgh, Shawmut and Northern and the Chicago and Eastern Illinois would be added.

The system would operate 13,000 miles of line and would represent a capital investment of $2,500,000,000.

The commission was also asked to allow the right to buy a one-fourth interest in the Delaware and Hudson, the Lehigh and New England, the Montour Railroad, the Pittsburgh, Chartiers and Youghiogheny, the Chartiers Southern, the Monongahela, the Pittsburgh and West Virginia lines east of the Ohio, and the West Side Belt of Pittsburgh. The New York Central, the Pennsylvania and the Baltimore and Ohio would each acquire a quarter interest in these properties.

The Van Sweringen group would take a one-third interest in the Pittsburgh and West Virginia lines west of the Ohio in partnership with the New York Central and the Baltimore and Ohio.

No specific proposals were advanced for terms and conditions of acquiring the ownership described, but it was said that the railroads believed that they could accomplish the purchases contemplated if the Commission approved.

STRONGER B. & O.

At the end of the projected four-system consolidation, the petition added, Eastern territory outside of New England would be served by four great trunk systems, each of them would be approximately equal in size, would have access to principal ports and cities and each would be capable of maintaining competitive relations with all of the others.

FOUR DEAD IDENTIFIED

The identified dead included George Jones, William Brown, Charles Luthy, Cecil Walker and George Wilkinson, all miners living in or near Peoria.

Brown was killed when he smashed a window of a coach and leaped, the car falling on him as he struck the ground.

The train left Peoria at 7:10 a. m. The wreck occurred 10 minutes later. The Peoria Terminal Railway is only 10 miles long, operating over the short route between Peoria and Pekin. Its chief traffic is switching and moving trains to accommodate working men of the industrial districts of the two cities and Bartonville.

At one time it was in the hands of a receiver and recently had been operated as the Peoria and Hanna City Railway, although still known as the Peoria Terminal Railway.

FLAG ESSAYISTS FIND HELP IN LIBRARIES

Indicating the interest of young people in the essay contest held by the United States Flag Association and sponsored by the Hearst newspapers, reports from librarians in Pittsburgh and surrounding towns in Western Pennsylvania, Ohio, West Virginia and elsewhere show how earnestly the students in the schools are studying the history of the Stars and Stripes.

Pupils in the grade schools, and high school students between the ages of 14 and 18 years, eligible to compete in the contest for trips around the world and patriotic journeys through the eastern United States, are finding a wealth of material for their topics in all the libraries.

GLAD TO ASSIST

Librarians are glad to assist the essayists select proper books and periodical publications, and the entire movement is lauded because, library attendants and teachers say, this form of study drills the students in systematic and intelligent research.

Pittsburgh essayists have rare sources to draw from in the reference collection in the Carnegie Library at Schenley Park and the Allegheny Carnegie Free Library in the North Side.

The books of the Historical Society of Western Pennsylvania, including many rare works and manuscripts, also are open to the students.

HISTORICAL INTEREST

It is pointed out that the history of the American flag abounds in many thrilling incidents that are in keeping with the romantic account of the making of the first flag by Betsy Ross.

The question arose as to how many school children and high school students know that the "Star-Spangled Banner" that inspired Francis Scott Key to write the national anthem contained more than 13 stripes.

How many stars and how many stripes were in the flag that floated from "Old Ironsides" when she battled with the "Guerriere"?

How many stars were in the flag that was carried in the parades of the Centennial in Philadelphia in 1876, and what state joined the Union that year?

These questions are quickly answered through books in libraries, but they are not always cleared up in the school textbooks. Librarians everywhere are co-operating with the young essayists—boys and girls—in their efforts to win those coveted trips around the world.

SOUTHERN RATE SIDE HEARD

WASHINGTON, Feb. 20.—(AP.)—Counsel for those who successfully challenged, in the Federal Court at Charleston, W. Va., the authority of the Interstate Commerce Comission to prohibit southern railroads from reducing rates on lake cargo coal, were heard today by the Supreme Court. Counsel for the commission and the northern carriers and coal mines presented their arguments yesterday.

John W. Davis and J. V. Norman, representing the southern carrieres and coal operators, and C. R. Hillyer, representing Wisconsin paper manufacturers and others using lake cargo coal, insisted that the lower court be sustained in permitting the southern railroads to make rates which would enable them to compete for the traffic.

NO CLUE TO GIRL KIDNAPED

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 20.—(INS.)—No trace had been found today of 4-year-old Doris Virginia Murphy, who disappeared last Friday while playing in Jefferson Square Park.

Posting of rewards totaling $3,500 has resulted in a flood of clues. None has resulted in any definite information regarding the child's whereabouts.

Three notes, purported to have been written by the girl's abductor, have been received by the Murphy family, but police are inclined to believe they were written by a crank.

That the child had been kidnaped by some member of her family was gaining credence today. The child's stepfather, Edward J. Murphy, has been questioned by police.

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Feb. 20.—(AP.)—Six prisoners escaped from the Kanawha County jail today. They severely beat a jail janitor after breaking out of their cells. Proctor and Jerrold Flemmer, held on auto theft charges, and Virgil Kemplin, awaiting trial on a charge of breaking and entering a garage. Four of the fugitives were stopped in an automobile at Gallipolis, O. One was captured and the automobile confiscated, but three escaped.

MAN HELD UP, TWO CAUGHT IN CHASE

Two men who police said were auto thieves and bandits, were captured in an automobile pursuit over icy Bloomfield streets today after the victim of a holdup had shouted for help. Two companions of the men escaped.

The prisoners identified themselves as Alton J. Herman, 24, of Brownsville road, and Joseph Klawinski, 21, of 153 South Sixteenth street. They were charged with being suspicious persons.

The chase began when an attempt was made to rob C. S. Wills, of 291 Main street, near his home. Four men leaped from an auto and seized Wills. One took his watch. Then Wills shouted, and two patrolmen came to his aid.

The bandits fled in their car, and the police commandeered a passing auto, and gave chase. At Forty-sixth and Butler streets a car was forced to the curb and halted. Two men leaped out and ran, but the policemen captured Herman and Klawinski.

The automobile used by the suspects was identified as the property of Frank E. Niemeyer, of 638 Park avenue, Avalon. Police learned it had been stolen a few hours earlier from in front of Syria Mosque.

CHARGE MURDER TO BOWMAN

HARRISBURG, Feb. 20.—Harry Bowman, 39, former perfume salesman of this city, today was held without bail for action by the March grand jury for the murder of Verna Klink, 30, of this city.

Wounds on the face and mouth were inflicted before the girl's body struck the waters of the Susquehanna River, Dr. R. L. Perkins, who assisted at the post-mortem examination, testified at the hearing.

The Klink girl's body was found in the river Sunday morning after having been missing since January 25.

Bowman was arrested and held under $15,000 bail for robbery, conspiracy and other charges. Mrs. Ethel Miller, his sweetheart, also was held under $3,000 bail for carrying concealed deadly weapons.

COAL POLICE PROBE ASKED

terday in the fatal beating of John Borkoski, Tyre farmer and miner. District Attorney Samuel H. Gardner announced today.

"I will ask prompt trial," Gardner added. "We have much damaging evidence we didn't present at the inquest."

The accused men, W. J. Lyster, H. P. Watts and Fran Slapakis, were back in the county jail today after their brief spell of comparative freedom yesterday while they faced the coroner's witnesses and heard themselves charged with brutality in the killing of Borkoski.

Their counsel, Attorney Charles B. Prichard, was not prepared to say whether he would ask a change of venue if the men stood trial.

It seemed probable, in case of trial, Dr. J. M. Patterson, Pittsburgh Coal Company physician, would be the chief witness for the commonwealth. At the inquest yesterday he gave, in a calm manner, an almost unbelievable recital of the brutality that went on in the police barracks at Imperial while Borkoski, it is alleged, was being tortured to death.

J. C. Chaplin, a member of the committee, urged the commissioners to recommend a downtown site to the planning commission.

SPEED TRIAL OF WARD GROUPS

BULLETIN.

The case of Daniel McLaughlin, Santo Laquatra and his brother, Jack Laquatra, defendants in the Twenty-first Ward group of the North Side liquor conspiracy prosecutions, went to the jury this afternoon.

Sentence of one North Side politician involved in a liquor conspiracy and high speed prosecution of the North Side ward groups accused of conspiracy, under the cloak of political organization and police protection, marked the third day of the government assault upon the North Side citadel of booze.

The sentence was imposed upon Edward L. Horigan, who entered a plea of guilty to conspiracy, after a jury was selected in United States Court to try him, and Judge F. P. Schoonmaker fixed the sentence at three months in the county jail, to run concurrently with a like sentence imposed last week when Horigan pleaded guilty to income tax evasions.

ONCE ACQUITTED

Horigan was one of the group originally tried and acquitted in the North Side conspiracy, allegedly as one of the Twenty-fourth Ward group, and was not re-indicted in the ward groups. The charge of conspiracy was separate from these.

The second round of the prosecution was completed today, when the trial of three defendants in the Twenty-first Ward group was concluded before Judge Nelson McVicar.

Daniel McLaughlin, alleged booze concessionaire, in the ward, with Santo Laquatra and his brother, Jack Laquatra, are defendants. Thirteen government witnesses testified against them.

Trial of the alleged widespread booze conspiracy cases on the South Side, listed to start today, has been postponed until next week. About 300 witnesses summoned to testify were notified today when they appeared in the Federal building to return next Monday.

PAROLE BROKEN, GETS 6 MONTHS

Thomas Pumckowski, 35, the first slot-machine racketeer to be caught violating the parole imposed after the recent grand jury investigation, was sentenced to six months in jail by Judge James B. Drew in Criminal Court today.

Pumckowski's alleged parole violation was reported to the court by Chief Probation Officer H. Austen. It was charged that liquor was found Sunday behind Pumckowski's North Side bar.

"When you were last here and pleaded guilty," Judge Drew said, "I imposed a nominal fine of $25 and paroled you for one year. I considered the parole an essential part of the sentence.

"As you are the first to violate your parole, it is necessary to make you and the others understand that you cannot engage in an illegal occupation in this county."

Judge Drew warned that other parole violators could expect the same sentence.

CUT SPAN LIGHT BILL $2,200

The County Commissioners can save approximately $2,200 in their bill for lighting the bridges in the county, according to a letter received from the Dequesne Light Company. The letter states that a recent reduction made in certain kinds of power supplied for lighting will reduce the annual bill for bridge lighting by $1,700. By paying bills promptly each month there will be a saving of an additional $492, the company states.

HOOVER CALLS MEETING WITH LEADERS

WASHINGTON, Feb. 20.—(AP.)—President-elect Hoover signalized his return to the capital from his Florida vacation by arranging conferences with the two men who are to lead he Republican forces in the two houses of the new Congress—Representative Tilson, of Connecticut, and Senator Watson, of Indiana.

Tilson

In addition he intended to seek an early meeting with President Coolidge to continue discussions begun last month after his return from his Latin-American good will tour and which were understood to have involved largely a carrying forward of the policies of the present into the future administration.

WILL DISCUSS PROGRAM

Tilson, who had charge of the Eastern speakers' bureau in the Hoover campaign organization, was called in last evening, while Watson, who stumped Indiana for Hoover, after vigorously opposing his nomination, was invited to the first of the breakfast conferences which the next President will hold between now and his inauguration. Details of the legislative program of the extra session of the Seventy-first Congress to be called for mid-April, formed the subject matter.

Watson

There already has been a substantial agreement that the major legislative acts of the extra session shall be limited to farm relief and tariff revision.

Hoover faces many other problems, including selection of successors to assistant secretaries and other high officers.

MELLON TO KEEP POST

The present expectation is that the next President will send the names of the successors to most of the subordinate officers to the Senate March 4, when he submits the names of his cabinet officers.

Just two are now regarded as certainties—Andrew W. Mellon, of Pittsburgh, and Henry L. Stimson, of New York. Mellon will continue as Treasury secretary, but whether Stimson is to be secretary of state or attorney general is in doubt.

Juror in Trouble As Prichard Argues

When Charles B. Prichard, defense counsel, argued before the jury yesterday, the chair of Juror No. 7 collapsed, precipitating him to the floor of the box without injury.

"I will not blow you out of your seats with my argument," Ralph H. Smith, government counsel, declared in opening his subsequent argument.

PORTER ARMS BILL TABLED

WASHINGTON, Feb. 20.—(AP.)—The Porter resolution to empower the President to impose embargoes on exports of arms and munitions to belligerent nations was tabled yesterday by the House Foreign Affairs Committee.

Chairman Porter said he would reintroduce the measure in the next Congress and pointed out that Secretary Kellogg recently had expressed a preference to his proposal over that introduced by Senator Capper, Republican, Kansas. The Capper resolution, on which action has not been pushed, would authorize the President to name a violator of the Kellogg-Briand multilateral treaty by proclamation, which Porter said would be an unneutral act.

The House Foreign Affairs Committee announced that the Porter measure was tabled only because it felt that action on it could not be obtained during the last days of this session and it would be fuile to report the solution to the House.

Chairman Porter said that if the legislation imposed the duty upon the President to name which of two belligerent nations was at fault, "it would tend more to promote war than peace and would be a duty impossible of performance."

"It requires no evidence to prove that no agency is more potent," Porter said, "for promoting and encouraging war than the traffic in arms and munitions. Therefore control over this traffic should be placed with the chief executive instead of with the munitions manufacturers.

KELLOGG ASKS COURT TO FIX PROTOCOL

WASHINGTON, Feb. 20.—(AP.)—A suggestion has been made by Secretary Kellogg to the World Court nations that an informal exchange of views between themselves might lead to an agreement upon some provision which in unobjectionable form would protect the rights and interests of the United States as an adherent to the court statute.

In identical notes delivered yesterday to the representatives of the World Court nations, Mr. Kellogg said the proposed protocal regarding adherence of the United States, adopted by these nations in 1926, would not furnish adequate protection of the rights and interests of this country. There seemed to be little difference regarding the substance of these rights and interests, he said.

Court Upholds State Inheritance Tax Law

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 20.—(AP.)—The state inheritance tax law, which would yield Pennsylvania several millions of dollars a year, was upheld yesterday by Judge Gordon Henderson, Orphans' Court, in a test case.

Judge Henderson's opinion affirms the right of the register of wills, as agent of the commonwealth, under the act of May 7, 1927, to collect additional inheritance taxes representing the difference between the total federal allowance of 80 per cent to states receiving government aid and the normal Pennsylvania tax, which is greater than the government's percentage allowance.

ENGLISH OFFERS GARLAND 'PUNCH ON NOSE' IN COUNCIL

"If you are going to be insulting, I'm going to hit you on the nose."

This statement was hurled at Councilman Robert Garland by Councilman W. Y. English during a heated clash at a meeting of the city fathers yesterday.

The imbroglio arose over a vote on an expenditure of $4,000 to advertise Pittsburgh in radio broadcasts.

W. Y. English

"Mayor Kline will be the only city official to speak during the broadcast," said President of Council James F. Malone.

"Then W. Y. English will be against it because WYE is not on the air," asserted Garland.

ENGLISH ANGERED

Councilman English leaped to his feet and cried:

"If you are going to be insulting, I'm going to hit you on the nose. You sat here two weeks ago and voted $13,000 for the Metropolitan District Commission without looking at the bills, and the commission turned around yesterday and insulted us."

Robert Garland

Garland—"You attribute great powers to me. If I could do a thing like that, I'd be another Mussolini."

Garland then called for a vote of Council on the proposal and announced:

"Eight Pittsburghers for it and W. Y. English against it."

English shouted back:

"I've done more for Pittsburgh than you have."

Garland—"The people don't know about it."

English—"They know I've never been indicted or arrested. You'll keep this up until you're sorry!"

PROGRAMS START MARCH 9

At this point other councilmen interposed with cries for order. English resumed his seat and Garland called for the order of business.

With the static cleared out of the air, President of Council Malone explained that tentative programs for advertising Pittsburgh over the radio had been outlined. The programs will start Saturday, March 9, and continue for 13 weeks thereafter.

Malone declared that 11 business firms in the city had contributed $1,000 each to meet the expense of hiring entertainers and that Station KDKA would bear the cost of broadcasting. The city's share will be only $4,000.

Councilman English declared that his objection was not to the broadcasting but to the type of program and said that hiring entertainers was not the best way to advertise the city. He was informed that preceding each program a prominent Pittsburgher would make a brief address extolling Pittsburgh's advantages.

CHURCHILL MAY RESIGN

LONDON, Feb. 20.—(AP.)—The government today counted the cost of a last-ditch move by Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin which saved it from defeat in the House of Commons last night.

Resignation of Winston Churchill, chancellor of the exchequer, was suggested even as a possible outgrowth of the incident. Both Mr. Churchill and Col. L. S. Amery, secretary for the Dominions, were in an humiliating position, one suggestive of repudiation by the premier.

Churchill

The situation arose in the face of a Conservative majority of more than 200 in the Commons. An eloquent and vehement plea by Mr. Churchill failed to quell the revolt of "die-hard" Conservatives, and party whips hastily summoned the prime minister.

He appeared personally within a few minutes and, apprised of the situation, asked leave for the government to reconsider its position. His request was granted—had it not been, or had he not appeared as he did a vote would almost certainly have sent the government down in defeat.

CONGRESS DRY, DRASTIC BILL VOTE SHOWS

By GEORGE R. HOLMES.
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 20.—If there ever had been any doubt about the drys being in the saddle in Congress—booted and spurred and riding hard—that doubt was dispelled today.

The dying seventieth Congress, with only 10 days of life left, is overwhelmingly dry.

The new seventh-first, which comes into being with the advent of the Hoover administration, will be still dryer.

Patently, therefore, any legislative reform or moderation of prohibition is projected into those far distant realms where the eye at present cannot reach.

STIFF PENALTIES

The Senate demonstrated this in a most conclusive fashion by adopting the drastic Jones bill, which more than doubles the present penalties for violation of the Volstead act. Under its provisions it would be possible for a judge to send a hip-flask toter to prison for five years and impose a fine of $10,000.

The bill passed the Senate after the most dramatic wet-and-dry fight Congress has seen in years. The vote was 65 to 18. It now goes to the House.

Its fate in the lower chamber is uncertain—not because the House is any wetter than the Senate, for it is more arid—but because the short time remaining of the present session and the parliamentary situation may prevent its getting to a vote.

SEE HOUSE PASSAGE

The intention of the drys is to rush it to victory in the House in the next 10 days. The wets hope to stop it.

It is a situation in which the voice of Herbert Hoover, the incoming President, may conceivably play some part. Certainly, if Mr. Hoover indicates by so much as a lifted eyebrow that he wants it acted upon by the House it will pass in a hurry.

The bill increases the maximum penalty for first violations of the prohibition laws to a fine of $10,000, or five years in prison, or both. The maximum penalty for first violations is at present a fine of $1,000, or six months' imprisonment, or both, and for second offenders a fine of $2,000, with five years' imprisonment. Minimum penalties were not changed.

AIMS AT BIG ONES

The bill was not aimed at petty or casual offenders, a provision inserted by the Senate declaring that judges when imposing sentences "should discriminate between casual or slight violations and habitual sales of intoxicating liquor or attempts to commercialize violation of the prohibition law."

Senator Bruce, of Maryland, one of the leaders of the opposition to the bill, declared: "I wish I could pronounce a curse on this bill with my last dying breath." He was referring to his retirement from the senate March 4.

MACHINE SHOP IS INVENTOR'S PARADISE

On the top floor of a downtown building, in the heart of the commercial and industrial center, a little machine shop attracts to its heart, the dreamers of today.

It's the inventors paradise. There under direction of Charles H. Allen, trained machinists develop the ideas that research men and inventors formulate. Here dreams are made practical, to serve the various demands of industries and humanity.

MADE RADIUM NEEDLES

While America controlled the radium industry, it was here that the minute needles wherein the radium was placed to be used by surgeons in the treatment of cancer and other ailments were manufactured.

Here Allen designed the world's smallest steam engine—the size of a postage stamp over all, with 163 parts weighing a total of 19 grains. It works with the steam pressure from any house radiator. It was exhibited in the World's Fair in Chicago, in 1892. Allen spent 15 weeks making it. All his labor was under a microscope.

TWISTS SAUSAGES

The most recent product of this little shop was a sausage twisting machine, which supplants the century-old hand process. This is the work of Allen and Jolly L. Morris of Crafton, inventor of a number of meat packing machines. It does the work of 12 men.

Scattered around the shop, in the Arrott Power Building, are numerous new contrivances—an automatic affair for setting up duckpins, a new ball-bearing hoist and even a snowball gun to make snowfighting easier for the pampered one and many novelties as well as medical and surgical instruments.

TEACHER AGAIN CHARGED WITH ABUSING CHILDREN

Mrs. Hazel S. Quick, Sewickley Heights teacher accused of abusing her pupils for the second time in the last several months, today is preparing her defense for a hearing before Justice of the Peace Margaret M. Morgan, of Sewickley, Friday night.

Mrs. Quick was arraigned last night on information filed by the parents of three of her pupils, but obtained a continuation to present defense witnesses. Several months ago she was given a hearing before the Sewickley Heights school board on similar charges, but was exonerated when the board returned a verdict of "spite work," according to President S. C. Beissinger.

No action will be taken by the board on the latest charges, at least until after the hearing.

Two informations were made by C. N. Worthley, who alleges his daughter, Laura, 10, had been struck with a book, and his other daughter, Betty, 8, was struck by Mrs. Quick with her fist. The other information was filed by Mrs. Kate Brodbeck who charges that her daughter, Alberta, 10, had been abused similarly. All the alleged abuse followed inability of the children to answer to text questions, according to the informations.

The action was prompted by the disclosure that certain payrollers in the service only a few months had been receiving vacations of the same length as those employed by the city for years.

MEDICAL EXAMINERS PROTEST DOPE CASH SETTLEMENTS

CONGRESS PROBE OF DRUG COMPROMISE POLICY SEEN

By A. M. ROCHLEN.

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 20.—Cash for crimes must go!

The medical profession has struck at the vicious practice of accepting offers in compromise from violators of the Harrison narcotic act—the nation's principal defense against the dope menace.

Aroused by the disclosures by the Hearst newspapers that the Federal Government accepts cash settlements for infractions of the narcotic laws, and by their own observations of the widespread effects of this evil, the Federation of Medical Examining Boards of the United States yesterday passed a strong resolution protesting against the system.

Congress Probe Seen

The organization, now in session in Chicago, probably is better qualified than any other organization to see the effects of the compromise policy on unethical physicians who prostitute their high calling by turning a valuable medicinal remedy into tortures of a living death.

The sentiments expressed by the men intrusted by the various states with safeguarding the medical standards in the United States is one of the strongest approvals of the Hearst newspapers' stand on this vital question.

Together with the statements of the Narcotic Research Association of the Pacific Coast — which has enlisted the aid of more than 5,000 organizations west of the Rocky Mountains—and the thousands of indorsements from leading educators, physicians and state and city officials, the resolution of the federated medical boards makes it certain that a congressional investigation of the dope evil will include every phase of the "compromise" system.

Copy of Resolution

The Chicago resolution, a copy of which was sent to the Los Angeles Examiner and the Hearst newspapers, read:

"Whereas it has come to the attention of the Federation of Medical Examining Boards of the United States that those engaged in enforcement of the Harrison narcotic laws have adopted the policy of settling out of court certain cases involving violations of the narcotic laws by accepting cash payments in compromise, and whereas, such procedure makes enforcement less effective, therefore be it resolved that the Federation of Medical Examining Boards of the United States in annual session convened at the Palmer House, Chicago, this nineteenth day of February, 1929, voice its disapproval of settlements of violations in compromises, and be it resolved that a copy of this resolution be forwarded to the proper federal authorities at Washington, D. C."

Dr. Charles B. Pinkham, and Dr. Percy Phillips, secretary and president of the California Board of Medical Examiners, voted for this resolution.

Coast Leaders Active

Dr. Pinkham is the veteran medical officer of the state, who for years battled against secrecy in the federal compromise cases, and who finally obtained, with the help of State Senator Sanborn Young, a modification of the rigid rules that hampered state boards in efforts to punish doctors who escaped prosecution by cash payments.

While the Federated State Boards were passing the Chicago resolution, leaders in the fight against the dope evil in California were introducing resolutions before the Legislature at Sacramento, in preparation for a more thorough and scientific combat against dope and its horrors.

The California resolutions, introduced by Assemblyman Z. S. Leymel, of Fresno, in the Assembly and by Senator Young in the Upper House, ask for sanction to continue the state narcotic committee in order that illicit drug traffic may be studied and remedies worked out.

Senator Young and Assemblyman Leymel took occasion to protest against the system of cash compromises in violations of the Harrison act, holding it to be "inimical to the proper enforcement of the law."

Records Kept Sealed

These compromises, Washington officials of the narcotic division, Bureau of Internal Revenue, declare are made only in minor cases involving technical violations where no guilty intent is shown.

Just how "technical" these violations really are few persons in the United States can tell. Iron-clad rules and regulations of the governmental department prohibit even the most casual inspection of the records, the Washington officials and various agents in charge say.

But state officials whose duties bring them into close contact with the "compromise" situation take issue with the federal officials on this point.

Dr. Phillips, one of the leading physicians on the Pacific Coast, and for many years head of California's medical board, gave this statement to the Hearst papers:

Board's Hands Tied

"At the present time in California, a compromise, since it does not constitute a conviction, immunizes a physician against a medical board trial," Dr. Phillips said.

"An amendment introduced by the board of medical examiners, and now before the California Legislature, puts compromise on the same status as a conviction, and, even when a physician has paid full compromise, if that law is passed he must go before the board of medical examiners on revocation proceedings.

"I am absolutely opposed to any compromise of any violation of Harrison narcotic act and am greatly interested in anything concerning tani-narcotic enforcement."

Peter's Milk Cocoa is prepared in the heart of a famous dairy region with an unfailing supply of the freshest, purest, full-cream milk. Its purity and freshness are safeguarded by the most scrupulous inspection and supervision from milking time until Peter's Milk Cocoa is ready for you in vacuum-packed, air-tight tins.

Once in the clutches of RHEUMATISM now the joy of the home

Why Rheumatism can't be rubbed out

THOSE muscular pains, commonly called rheumatism, are generally due to a "run-down" condition, with the number of red-blood-cells below the normal count.

S.S.S. aids the system in building up these red-blood-cells and in getting rid of the condition of which the rheumatism is but a symptom. The body becomes strong and disease-resistant, and the rheumatic pains go.

Pains in your muscles and joints make you miserable, less efficient, interfere with your working hours, ruin your sleep. If allowed to continue, as the years pass the danger increases.

But what a change with rich, red-blood-cells in your body—Nature's building material—making the flesh firm—giving strength to the vital organs.

You can't rub rheumatism out. It is deeper than that. It must be driven out. And the sure way is by helping the fighting blood—the red-blood-cells!

Increase your army of "workers" (red-blood-cells), and those muscle and joint pains, commonly called rheumatism, vanish. S.S.S. has brought this change about for thousands. Why not for you?

Made from fresh vegetable drugs—

"After suffering several years, six bottles of S.S.S. completely relieved me of rheumatism. It also cleared up a skin eruption and gave me a good appetite. I think S.S.S. is a wonderful medicine."
R. L. Busic, Southern Railway, Knoxville, Tenn.

"I was very nervous; had hardly any appetite, and suffered with rheumatism. I tried many medicines, but S.S.S. is the one that did me the most good. I am now well, and feel like a new man."
William Osborne, 2406 Sloan Street, Flint, Mich.

S.S.S.

S.S.S. is made from fresh vegetable drugs and has a successful record of over 100 years back of it.

All good Drug Stores sell S.S.S. in two sizes. Ask for the larger size. It is more economical.

House Readjustment Up in Senate Monday

WASHINGTON, Feb. 20.—(AP.)—The Senate today agreed to take up the bill for the reapportionment of the House of Representatives Monday night.

Debate on the bill, which has passed the House, was begun last night when Senator Copeland, of New York, delivered a long speech in opposition to it.

King George Kept Indoors by Weather

BOGNOR, Sussex, England, Feb. 20.—(AP.)—Cold weather and strong winds have made it impossible to take King George to the veranda of Craigwell House where he might derive the benefit of the sunshine. The King passed a good night and his household is eagerly awaiting more favorable weather.

FISHER WARNS ON SPENDING

HARRISBURG, Feb. 20.—(AP.)—A warning against injudicial spending of the surplus in the state treasury was uttered by Gov. Fisher last night in an address to members of the General Assembly, who were, together with the Governor and his cabinet, honored guests at a dinner and reception given by the Harrisburg Chamber of Commerce.

Pointing out that the unprecedented surplus of approximately $23,000,000 did not accrue through taxation channels, the Governor represented himself as opposed to wholesale repeal of tax laws.

Since this comfortable nest egg has manifested itself, he said that he had been approached with the finest schemes for relieving tax burdens.

"There is a lot of ingenuity in the minds of the taxpayers of Pennsylvania," he said.

Edward E. Beidleman, former lieutenant governor and who was defeated by Gov. Fisher for the Republican nomination for governor, also was a speaker at the reception, attended by 600 persons. He welcomed the legislators as a citizen of Harrisburg.

SAW OTHER MAN, ASKS DIVORCE

Coming home unexpectedly, John R. Smith, locomotive engineer, of Stewart street, Turtle Creek, found his wife, Genevieve, 40, now of Sutterville, entertaining another man in the living room of their home, Smith testified today at the hearing of his plea for divorce before Judge Frank B. Patterson in Common Pleas Court.

Smith said he threw the man out of the house and continued to live with his wife until several days later, when he alleged he saw her and her erstwhile guest in the street. Smith said he followed them to an East End hotel, where his wife's companion escaped down a fire escape.

The Smiths were married in 1910 and have two grown children.

DRY AGENT FINDS PROHIBITION ENFORCEMENT IMPOSSIBLE

MEN DISGUSTED BY OFFICIALS' GRAFTING

A Federal prohibition agent of six years' experience who has been in various government posts and public service more than 20 years from coast-to-coast, has written to the Hearst $25,000 temperance prize contest a striking commentary on Prohibition. At the same time he sends in his entry to the contest.

"In honest attempts at enforcing prohibition, as far as I am personally concerned," he writes, "I have used airplanes, steamships, railroads, automobiles and every conceivable kind of conveyance. I have traveled countless thousands of miles, seizing distilleries, arresting moonshiners and obtaining convictions which mean nothing.

"I have preserved a great mass of documentary facts that are amazing. I am preparing to write a book in order to give the truth to my countrymen. Naturally I shall not publish my book while in government employ, and will first have to resign my present position.

"In connection with these communications kindly refrain from publishing my name or any identifying facts, for of course it would cost me my present position at a time when I am the sole support of my aged mother.

"I have copies of official reports, telegrams and photographs to substantiate my observations. The plan I am suggesting to Mr. Hearst's temperance contest committee, if put into effect, will eliminate a large number of high-salaried government grafters, who of course want to see prohibition continue. Prohibition agents and numerous other Federal officials might then stand some chance of becoming law-abiding citizens.

Force Ineffective

"Permit me to say to the readers of the Hearst newspapers that it is impossible for our government to make National prohibition effective by simply using force. Human nature has always been the same and is not going to change. All of the prohibition law breakers whom I have arrested and had fined and imprisoned are free again and have resumed the manufacturing and selling of hard liquor right under the eyes of us prohibition agents.

"Many of us have become so disgusted with such conditions that we have refused to rearrest these rum runners, distillers and bootleggers. Many of my associates under deputy prohibition administrators have seen that their efforts are of no use, because prohibition cannot be made to prohibit, and because thwarted by higher-ups, so they also have turned to grafting."

This is only part of the picture painted by the Federal prohibition agent who writes on the official letterhead of the Prohibition Service of the Treasury Department, giving his district, full name and also private address. It is typical, however, of conditions revealed everywhere through the temperance prize contest and the endless mass of materials it has collected.

It is illuminative of some of the reasons which induced William Randolph Hearst to offer his $25,000 capital prize and provisional lesser prizes of $5,000 and $1,000 for the best practical temperance plan as a substitute for prohibition, one "which will be more easily possible of enforcement by state and Federal authorities, which will offer less encouragement to crime and tend less to debauch the public service," to quote the words of the donor.

Following are further expressions on the purposes of the contest from citizens of note in various parts of the continent as gathered by Hearst newspaper correspondents:

Edwin H. Arant

Edwin H. Arant, engineer, Bastrop, La.:

"It is with great satisfaction that I read the comment published by the Hearst newspapers from various parts of the United States on the paramount topic of prohibition. Since my World War service and discharge from the army I have spent considerable time in veterans' hospitals in various parts of the country undergoing treatment.

"Never yet have I heard any man that served his country in France, Russia or elsewhere in the World War express approval of prohibition. The general consensus is that it was legislation 'slipped across' when the backs of from 2,000,000 to 3,000,000 voters and fighting men were turned.

"Prohibition has caused, perhaps by way of subconscious protest, countless previously abstemious people to start drinking, many of them heavily, and countless others to manufacture for their neighbors alcoholic beverages of impossible grade but of undoubted 'kick' potency which leads to early graves, insanity or moral degeneracy.

"More power to the Hearst temperance prize contest and may some man or woman of penetrating brain power, knowledge of law and of human nature, and understanding of the hypocrisies of dry legislators, of bootleggers' political activities and of professional dry exponents, who thrive like many of the equally objectionable professional wets on their highly-paid money-raising jobs, win deservedly the $25,000 prize."

Joseph Kam

Joseph Kam, business man, of Buffalo, N. Y.:

"Having read with great interest Mr. Hearst's letters last month addressed to Mr. Edwin J. Clapp and to Mr. W. C. Durant, and his efforts to find the best workable plan for promotion of true temperance, I wish to offer my word of praise for the temperance contest.

"True temperance is desired by 90 per cent of fair-minded people. Prohibition is a crime against God and man, has been detestable to the great majority ever since it was adopted and efforts made to enforce it.

"The only remedies to promote true temperance are regulation and education, and not elimination. My motto always has been that every person has a fundamental right to drink beer, wine or other beverages moderately and temperately so long as he does not abuse this personal privilege."

Willis H. Booth

Willis H. Booth, vice-president of the Guaranty Trust Company, New York:

"Mr. Hearst has done a highly laudable and practical thing in offering a prize of $25,000 in his open competition for the best plan by which temperance can be achieved in the country. The temperance contest now being conducted by the Hearst newspapers throughout the country, will provoke widespread thought on the question of finding a substitute for prohibition, and only by a great deal of serious thought can anything be accomplished.

"Prohibition, it is obvious, has failed to prohibit. Furthermore, it has brought with it evils which are too well known to need enumeration. Without questioning the sincerity and conscience of those whose efforts made it the law, it must be recognized that prohibition so far has not proved itself workable in law or in conscience.

"The next logical step, then, would be in the direction of a plan that will stand the test of application, and at the same time prevent excesses in the use of malt, vinuous and spirituous liquors. Mr. Hearst, for the good of his country, has taken this step, and I sincerely hope the contest will bring forth a solution of the problem of which legislators and the general public will approve."

7 Rules for $25,000 Temperance Contest

The purpose of the contest is to obtain a practicable plan, as a substitute for prohibition, which will secure better actual temperance conditions, which will be more easily possible of enforcement by state and Federal authorities, which will offer less encouragement to crime and tend less to debauch the public service, and which will not so outrage and violate the fundamental rights and personal liberties of American citizens.

The rules and conditions of the contest are simple and are as follows:

1—Every person is entitled to enter the contest, but no one person may submit more than one plan.

2—The practicable plan proposed as a substitute for prohibition must be set forth in an article containing not more than 1,000 words.

3—This contest will close on April 30, 1929, and no plan which has not been mailed and postmarked on or before that date will be considered.

4—The articles submitted in the contest will be judged by a committee of eminent Americans, the personnel of the committee to be announced at a later date.

5—The full prize of $25,000 will be awarded to the contestant submitting the best plan as a practical temperance substitute for prohibition.

6—If other plans not awarded the first prize shall still be considered worthy of some compensation by the committee, a second prize of $5,000 and other prizes of $1,000 each may be awarded.

7—Articles submitting a plan to be considered in this contest may be sent to the temperance contest committee, care of the editor of any one of the following Hearst newspapers: Albany Times-Union, Atlanta Georgian, Baltimore News, Boston Evening American, Chicago Herald and Examiner, Detroit Times, Los Angeles Examiner, New York American, Omaha Bee-News, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, Rochester Journal, San Antonio Light, San Francisco Examiner, Syracuse Journal, Seattle Post-Intelligencer, Washington Herald, Wisconsin News (Milwaukee).

DRY REPEATERS GET 60 DAYS IN JAIL

Sixty-day jail sentences were imposed by Judge R. M. Gibson on four second offenders in Federal Court on charges of violating the national prohibition law. They were Nate Brletic, of McKeesport; Robert Crombie, of Pittsburgh; Julius Schreiber, of Duquesne, and Koziner Beliski, of Braddock, who pleaded guilty to indictments which contained records of former similar pleas.

Sylvester Shaw, of Creighton, was sentenced to 30 days in jail when he pleaded guilty to manufacturing and possessing moonshine whisky, and the same jail sentence was given Matty Ruzomberka, of Millvale, when he pleaded guilty to selling and possessing intoxicating liquor.

COUNTY SEEKS 4TH AVE. SITE FOR MORGUE

The county commissioners today are a step nearer in their work of clearing decks for the construction of the new county office building and the removal of the county morgue to make way for the new structure. Real estate men were present at a meeting of the commissioners yesterday at which offers were made for the property in Fourth avenue, which in all probability will be the site of the morgue in future years.

An offer of $180,000 was made to agents of the Wilson estate for the old Wilson property on the South Side of Fourth avenue, above Ross street. The offer met with approval and it is expected it will be satisfactory to the estate. The commissioners must then obtain a six-foot strip of land before final plans can be laid.

The estimated cost of property as reached by the Department of Public Works was $182,000. By the time all the property has been obtained the cost probably will be much higher. The Pittsburgh Press Club has signified its willingness to dispose of a strip of property which will be included in the deal.

Denial of Lobbying Is Made by Lenroot

WASHINGTON, Feb. 20.—(A.P.)—Appearing before a Senate judiciary subcommittee, Irvine Lenroot, former Republican Senator from Wisconsin, and now a nominee for the Court of Customs Appeals, denied yesterday he had ever been a lobbyist since his retirement from Congress two years ago.

In replying to a question by Senator Borah regarding Lenroot's appearance before the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee in opposition to the Walsh resolution for investigation of the power utility companies, Lenroot said he considered appearance before a congressional committee as a lawyer in the same classification with appearance in court.

Woman Dies Looking At Book in Library

Attaches at the Schenley Park Carnegie Library entered the reference room there last night and found the body of Mrs. Sarah Quinn, 55, of 244 Atwood street, upon the floor. Dr. T. C. Provost said she had died of heart disease, apparently while examining a reference book. She was identified from a card found in her pocketbook.

City Street Reports To Go to Utilities

Public utility companies will be notified whenever the city repairs streets in order that these companies may install any gas or electric lines needed at the time, under a motion affirmed by Council yesterday. The action was taken to prevent the tearing up of streets for such work immediately after repairs had been made by the city.

COUNTY TO AID AERO SHOW

A display booth, showing the strides Allegheny County has taken in aviation, its present airport at Rodgers Field and the proposed flying field in Mifflin township, will be seen at the aircraft show to be held the week of March 9 in Motor Square Garden under the auspices of the Aero Club of Pittsburgh. This was authorized at a meeting of the county commissioners yesterday.

Commissioner E. V. Babcock presented a resolution, which was unanimously approved, that Allegheny County observe "Aviation Week" while the show is being held. The resolution states that many prominent persons in the field of aviation would be in Pittsburgh for the show and it was only fitting that their presence be recognized. Later it was decided to have a booth in the show.

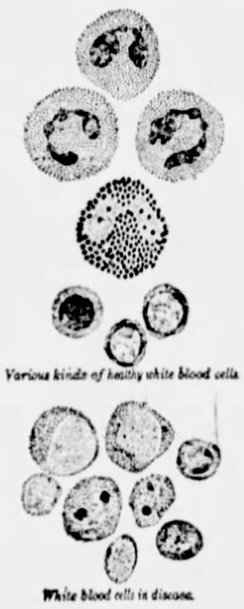
LACK OF INTELLIGENCE

Makes Countless Millions Mourn

All mankind is now working on "Preventive Medicine," and we will soon have "Preventive Clinics," created by Laboratories whose wide field of usefulness will be recognized by State and Government. It would be useless to dip our pen in the ink of an "Einstein" to explain what the majority of us know to be a fact, but our message is to try and present an intelligent viewpoint and secure co-operation with a view of helpfulness in the prevention of suffering and disease.



Various kinds of healthy white blood cells.

White blood cells in disease.

To speak of germs takes us back 25 years, and if we have progressed more in the "science of prevention" than 2500 years previous, we owe our knowledge to the Laboratory. So the world is turning to the blood stream to prevent sickness and disease, because medicine cannot reach the toxins of the blood when acted on by the acid of the stomach and the alkali of the intestines. 288,000 doctors say it is true, so it must be.

Blood Cell Protein Serums will never be sold only through orthodox laboratories and are now in use in many cities. Seven years of trial here in Pittsburgh, with over 35,000 patients, should answer all direct questions. The Institution here was incorporated for the public, where the poorest patient receives the same serum as his more affluent brother, with no doctor charges for any service. All patients pay the same price for the same serum.

Having made discovery of the Enzyme Atom in 1909, from which many of the serums are made, we look back at the change of attitude by the world in general, and the more we find out, the greater becomes our responsibility and obligation to the afflicted. (No secrets). Every fact always known to the public but always tried out first. No false ethics. Our physicians receive the same salary if they do not treat the patient. A strictly non-commercial Clinic.

Space will not permit much history of these great curative serums that are made for each separate disease. Vaccines, which you know more about, is a twin sister to Heaven's nurse, because it reaches the blood stream the same way as the direct serum. We carry all vaccines and serums that are orthodox. We have long since abandoned cures with medicine and the public has approved our course, (to prevent the source of infection). It makes the poor wife and mother bear the burden of our mistakes and all too early she is laid away. Prayers are good, and so is religion, but faith has not been found that was strong enough to stop infection.

Patients pay only for serums administered. Everybody pays the same price for the same serum. Come in—talk to the patients.

We are successfully treating High Blood Pressure, Rheumatism, Asthma, Diabetes, Anemia, Neuritis, Nervous or Stomach Troubles, Debility, Kidney Trouble, Heart Trouble, Blood and Skin Diseases, and other ailments affecting the blood stream.

MAN KIDNAPED, ASK $25,000

DETROIT, Mich., Feb. 20.—(AP.)—Isadore Feuring, 37, a dealer in bottles, went into his back yard last night to meet a man he believed a customer. He failed to return and his wife reported to police she had received a message saying Feuring was being held for $25,000 ransom.

Mrs. Feuring told police the man had visited the place twice previously.

Feuring left the dinner table to meet the man, his wife said, and was hatless and coatless.

The ransom message came by telephone, a man saying:

"We are holding your husband. You'll have to pay us $25,000."

KONJOLA

The Konjola Man would be pleased to meet the users of the famous new compound, Konjola. Anyone who has obtained beneficial results may call at the Dow Drug Store, Penn Avenue and Sixth Street. A worthwhile message awaits you.

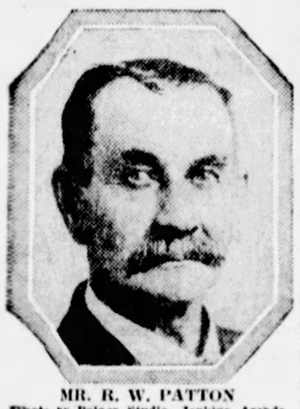
NEURITIS PAINS QUICKLY ROUTED BY NEW KONJOLA

Former Sufferer Describes How Famous Medicine Went to Source of Diseases After Three Years of Misery.

"In Konjola I found the first and only relief from my suffering." How often this glad statement is made to the Konjola Man, who is at the Dow Drug Company, formerly McCulloch's, Penn Ave. and Sixth St., this city, by grateful men and women made well through the use of this advanced medicine.



MR. R. W. PATTON

There is no secret, no mystery about the amazing success of Konjola. It is a medicine containing 32 ingredients, 22 of them the medicinal juices of roots and herbs. Konjola works with the sufferer's own food, restoring a more normal, healthy action to the important functionary organs of the body, such as the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels. Konjola is a medicine of accomplishments, not promises; a medicine of results, not claims. From the Konjola Man you will hear of case after case wherein this master compound proved the first and only remedy that brought relief. He has been sent to this city, not to sell Konjola, primarily, but to help all seekers after health, to advise them about their health problems. Many of his callers are telling how they were already benefited through the use of Konjola. Take, for instance, the statement of Mr. R. W. Patton, Gibsonia, Pa., a short distance from Pittsburgh, who said to the Konjola Man a few days ago:

"Since taking Konjola I have but one regret and that is that I didn't know of it a great deal sooner. What days of suffering it would have saved me. Three years ago I was afflicted with rheumatism and neuritis. I tried many medicines, in fact, everything that was recommended, but I might as well have taken water. I lived a life of constant torment; of agonizing pains. Nights were just so many hours of distress; sleep was out of the question. Every morning I dragged myself off to work, which was nothing more than torture. My legs were stiff and sore and made it almost impossible to walk. What did the future hold for me? I could see nothing but a life of suffering—I was merely existing, not living.

"After so many fruitless quests for relief, I had little faith in any medicines or treatments. That is why I did not pay much attention to the many wonderful things that were being said about Konjola. Finally, my friends practically insisted that I give it a trial and, more to please them than anything else, I started the treatment. What a glorious day that was for me. The first bottle opened the road to health and I traveled it fast. The aches and pains grew fainter and fainter and then, just like chaff before the wind, they vanished completely. Sound sleep has been restored to me and new strength and energy are mine. Work is no longer a drudgery; life is not a torture. Ahead of me I see days of happiness with new and glorious health. To Konjola I owe everything."

Konjola contains no harmful drugs—it needs no such hazardous ingredients. Konjola is all medicine, every drop and every drop works. It is said that no sufferer can afford not to give it a trial. Every day of delay simply means another day of needless suffering.

The Konjola Man is at the Dow Drug Company, formerly McCulloch's, Penn Ave. and Sixth St., this city, where he is meeting the public daily, introducing and explaining the merits of this master medicine.

Hollywood Chronicles Combined With Announcements of Theater Bills

CHARLIE CHAPLIN'S NEW FILM, "CITY LIGHTS," WILL BE 100 PER CENT SILENT

By DOROTHY HERZOG

(Copyright, 1929, by Premier Syndicate).

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 19.

THERE is so little studio activity these days that the footweary player wonders why get a shine? . . . Director Paul Sloan ran off his new colored picture, "Hearts of Dixie." Hear tell it's a wow. . . . Pauline Starke has been having her own troubles keeping the servants contented. Only thing to do is be nonchalant. . . . Charley Chaplin's "City Lights"—a comedy not a slogan—will be 100 per cent silent. Three cheers and two tigers. . . . Mrs. Cherrill, mother of Virginia Cherrill, Charlie's new leading femme, came to the studio once with her daughter.

Have you heard that Jack Warner is to open a clothing store adjoining his Hollywood theater? Um, so the story goes. But only one pair of pants go with a suit whether you buy a ticket or not. First National has officially recognized Billie Dove as a star. Her dressing room has been enlarged and boasts a kitchen.

Pauline Starke.

. . . Viola Brothers Shore suggests a charming theme song for Clara Bow's forthcoming circus flicker, namely, "Leopard, Oh, Leopard, I can't Find Your Spot."

Emil Changes 'Phone Number

KARL VOELMOELLER, author of "The Miracle" (a play, not a demonstration), is Edwin Carewe's house guest. A whisper whisps that Voelmoeller is penning a story for Emil Jannings. . . Apropos of nothing, Emil Jannings has his telephone number changed on the average of twice a month. There's a suggestion gratis to all married men. . .

Emil Jannings.

Gertrude Olmstead searching for a new apartment. Apartment chasing is fast becoming as annoying a local sport as it is in New York. At that, history reports that cave dwellers pay heavy toll.

Alice White and Sally Eilers conscious of a terpsichore hangover after a session with Larry Cebalos, the big foot and kick expert.

Doug Fairbanks has an office boy yclept Elmer. Came a day when Elmer was asked to run an errand for the studio. But could he? He couldn't. Seems Elmer is the only lad on the lot who can give Doug a run-for-his-breath at ping pong. He sticks around until about 6 p. m. awaiting Doug's pleasure. You can't run errands and ping pong, too.

Colleen Moore Gets Doll House

GLENN TRYON must have deducted a thing or two from the Universal lunch room. Matzohs are served there every day. So Glenn had his name printed in both Hebrew and English on the back of his set chair. . . . Colleen Moore is terribly enthused over the new doll house she is having made. The miniature bed is being carved in ivory in China. Something else is being made in Russia. Something else in another country. Eventually it will tour the country in behalf of a charity cause. Later, Colleen will present it to the local museum . . . And—that's all for today.

CROOK SLANG IN GRAND PICTURE

Since the advent into the public prints of the New York Police Department's "strong-arm" squad in drag-netting Manhattan and making the criminal realize the unpleasantness which prevails for his operations, the public is getting more of an inside glimpse into the workings of the underworld than it could gain in the reading of a score of best-selling mystery stories, it is pointed out. With such a state of affairs prevalent, the argot of the underworld takes its place in the metropolitan dailies, tending to popularize the slang of the criminal to such an extent that it is beginning to pass into current usage and every day speech.

In this connection, Richard Barthelmess and his company when making the new First National-Vitaphone picture, "Weary River," which opens at 6 o'clock tomorrow evening in the Grand, had the opportunity to learn many new words of prison slang when L. J. O'Connor, criminalogist, long engaged in prison work, supervised the filming of the prison sequences. The slang of the criminal is heard in the talking sequences of the picture in which Barthelmess takes part along with Betty Compson and other players.

Some of their picturesque expressions and interrogations follow:

Belched, spoke, turned informer; bundle, a woman, a package from home; benjamin, an overcoat; bungar, a black eye; creepers, soft shoes for thieves, also prison trusties; dick, a policeman; frisk, to search; gat, a gun; grease, pay for protection; heeled, armed; hipped, at a disadvantage; jungle, a prison; moll, a woman; rod, revolver; rocks, diamonds; soup, nitroglycerine; stir, a prison; steerer, pilot for a band of crooks; fallback, a friend in need; up the river, sentenced to Sing Sing.

In Drama

Dorothy Cohen will play the title role in the "Y" Civic Playhouse production of "Anna Christie" in the Y. M. and W. H. A. tonight and tomorrow night.

Thrift Is a Useful Tool

by E. T. Whiter

THRIFT is one of the tools used to win the sort of success that brings contentment. At least once in the life of nearly every man he faces the absolute need for cash capital, else opportunity will pass him by. This opportunity may come in love, in business, or in the pursuit of cultural factors in a career. Thrift is distilled prudence. It distinctly is not miserliness. Thrift keeps up appearances, picks the desirable offerings of our new progress and rejects the froth.

Starting as a telegraph operator for the Pennsylvania Railroad shortly before his 17th birthday, Mr. E. T. Whiter has climbed to the vice-presidency of that great transportation system.

Difficulties and hardships were the whip and spur to his endeavor, and the lure of the job just ahead drew out of him resources of ability which could never have been born had it not been for the constant, conscious practice of that wholesome, helpful kind of thrift which "rejects the froth" and "brings contentment."

The Union Savings Bank is presenting this series of editorials by Pittsburgh business and professional leaders, believing that they reflect the true spirit of that success which, as Mr. Whiter says, "brings contentment."

INTIMATE PAPERS OF COLONEL HOUSE

Financial Problems During War Increased Greatly By Loan Requests

CHAPTER IV.

SHORTLY after the discussion on capital ships, House received word from Sir Cecil Spring-Rice that the British government had also decided to send a war mission to the United States for the co-ordination of British war activities. As chief of the mission they selected no less a person than Lord Northcliffe, who was qualified for this difficult task as much by his superabundant energy as by his conviction that American resources were necessary to turn the scales of war in favor of the Allies.

Northcliffe to Churchill

(Cablegram)

New York, July 27, 1917.

I have long believed war can only be won from here. The position is most difficult and delicate. Sir William Wiseman, chief of our Military Intelligence here, should reach England in a few days. He is the only person, English or American, who has access to Wilson and House at all times. He had an hour and a half with Wilson last week and a day with House. The administration is entirely run by these two men. Wilson's power is absolute and House is a wise assistant. Both are pro-English. Northcliffe.

Northcliffe not merely used his influence with friends on the American press, but exerted himself in every way to come into close contact with the leaders of industry, so as to hasten and simplify the delivery of supplies for the British. When a misunderstanding arose over the offer of Henry Ford to send 6,000 tractors to the British Food Production Department at cost, Northcliffe himself settled the matter and incidentally discovered in the great American industrialist a personality which piqued his interest and admiration.

"I have endeavored to get into touch with Ford," he wrote on October 6, "but he has twice put me off. It may be necessary for me to go to Detroit and eat humble pie, and if so will do so gladly. Ford is entirely indifferent to financial considerations.

"October 14, 1917: I have no desire for further long journeys, but it is considered important by those who are behind the scenes that I should go out to Detroit, and I propose arriving there Tuesday or Wednesday next. Edison, an intimate friend of Ford and an old friend of mine, has arranged matters.

"October 17, 1917: I spent yesterday with Ford. The construction of the tractors is being pressed forward with immense energy . . . . Ford is not in the tractor business for money, but because he believes it will revolutionize the home life of England, to which country he is attached. The arrival of the tractors in England should be treated in the American way, and if possible, the Prime Minister should be cinematographed with them . . . . I have seen many tractors, but in my personal judgment the Ford tractor is as great a revolution in cheap efficiency as the Ford motor car. Ford, who looks like the Bishop of London, is an anti-militarist ascetic and must not be treated as a commercial man.

"Ford wants a copy of Cobbett's Rural Rides, and of Tennyson's Letters, which were published some years ago by his son. Please send the books direct to him at Detroit, with my compliments, in case I should be on my way home by the time the books get there."

"If Loan Stops War Stops"

As the student turns over the bulky manuscripts relating to the interests and activities of Col. House during the war, he is surprised, perhaps, to note the number and size of those relating to financial problems.

The essential facts of the financial history of 1917 were simple: The Allies were compelled to ask for loans from the United States of a size which frightened the American Treasury, and which, even if the credits should be given, might be difficult to justify to the American taxpayer. The war was costing sums which were quite inconceivable to the ordinary citizen, and the Allies had begun to scrape the bottom of the chest. Unless the United States helped out freely, the military effort in the field could not be maintained. As Lord Northcliffe cabled late in the summer, the American government was "appalled by magnitude of financial task. They are complete masters of the situation as regards ourselves, Canada, France, Italy and Russia. Loan to us strongly opposed by powerful section of Congress. If loan stops, war stops."

The administration at Washington was further confused by the lack of organization in Allied demands for credit and supplies. It was not until August that a purchasing board was created. Previous to the entrance of the United States into the war, the firm of J. P. Morgan and Company had acted with great success as purchasing and financial agents for the British and French governments. Mr. E. R. Stettinius took charge of the co-ordination and purchase of supplies, as distinct from purely financial questions, and created within a short period an organization of such efficiency that Ludendorff was quoted as stating that Stettinius was worth an army corps to the Allies.

Limitation Advised

With the entrance of the United States into the war, it was obviously impossible for a private firm to continue as purchasing agent for the Allied governments. On April 3, J. P. Morgan and Company suggested that the British take up the question of obtaining supplies and making purchases through the United tSates government; it was clear that the business of the British government ought to be transacted by its direct representatives, working in conjunction with the various departments of the United States government, in an effort to obtain the benefit of the more favorable prices and terms that could be secured only through the exercise of governmental control.

The liquidation of the loan was expected by the participating banking institutions on or about July 1, the British understanding that it would be a first call on the loan to be made them by the United States Treasury.

The situation seemed less desperate, perhaps, to the financial experts than it did to Allied political leaders, for it was likely that supplies would be exhausted before credits could be used. Thus in October, Lord Reading cabled to England: "What will save the United States Treasury, as it has saved ours in the past, will be the material limitation on what it is possible to buy. Goods will not in fact be forthcoming on a sufficient scale to absorb the vast credits to which the departments and the Allies are becoming entitled." None the less, the political leaders in Europe, as well as Northcliffe in the United States, were constantly caught in the nightmare that the loans would be refused: "If loan stops, war stops." Hence the frequent appeals to House, asking his help in explaining their need to the administration.

Great Britain's Crisis

One of the most interesting appeals came at the end of June. Through some misunderstanding the British ambassador gathered that in order to liquidate the Morgan loans on the date desired, July 1, it would be necessary for the British to sell collateral. The securities were perfectly sound, of the highest character; but with American government loans overhanging the market, it would be difficult to sell American securities in large amounts at satisfactory prices. What chiefly disturbed the British leaders, however, was their fear that if the news of the selling of collateral were noised abroad, the effect would inevitably be disastrous to exchange and to the credit of the British government. The British secretary for foreign affairs evidently regarded the moment as critical.

"I have been at the telephone continuously for hours," wrote House in his diary, "talking first to the State Department, then to New York, trying to unravel the tangle."

House to President

Magnolia, Massachusetts,
June 29, 1917.

Dear Governor:

Things began to break yesterday afternoon in British quarters. Spring-Rice is at Woods Hole and McAdoo at Buena Vista and the machinery became clogged. As usual, Sir William took hold and is trying today to see what can be done.

Northcliffe received a message from Lloyd George to come here and advise with me before moving further. He was ready to take the 10 o'clock train this morning when I received, through Sir William, the cable from Balfour which I sent you by Lansing. I therefore advised Northcliffe to go to Washington immediately rather than come here, which he has done.

By putting together what I gather from Washington and Sir William, the trouble that has come about concerning finances is largely a matter of misunderstanding. . . .

The British understood that we would take care of certain Russian obligations they have been carrying. They claim if they had not been under this impression they would have arranged to take care of the matter in a different way.

What they need is $35,000,000 on Monday, $100,000,000 on Thursday and $185,000,000 a month for two months beginning 10 days from next Thursday.

This is a staggering amount and indicates the load Great Britain has been carrying for her allies. It seems to me that we should have some definite understanding with England as to what money she will need in the future and how far she can count upon us.

It seems absurd to be giving her comparatively small amounts, the frequent publication of which make a bad impression on our people. Would they not stand one large amount better than these lesser abounts constantly brought to their attention?

Affectionately yours,
E. M. HOUSE.

The American Dollar

Magnolia, Massachusetts.
August 10, 1917.

Dear Governor:

I talked the financial situation out with McAdoo when he was here Tuesday. I think it can be satisfactorily adjusted. Northcliffe comes for tomorrow and Sunday, and I will be able to see how nearly the English position coincide with McAdoo'. . . . (Ed. Note: "I am spending the next four days with Col. House, through whom I have been able to effect much more good than I have achieved at Washington." Northcliffe to Bonar Law, August 10, 1917).

I cautioned McAdoo to give, when he had to give, with a glad hand, for in any other way we will lose both money and good will. As long as we have money to lend, those wishing to borrow will be agreeable, but when the bottom of the barrel is reached, it may be a different story. It is their turn now to be pleasant—later it will be ours in order to collect what the owe.

I remember, during one of the old-time panics, a very rich man was asked by a friend of mine whether he was terribly worried. He replied, "No, I am not at all worried, but the banks that are carrying me are."

Affectionately yours,
E. M. House.

A few weeks later Lord Northcliffe re-emphasized, in a cable to the Prime Minister, the close relations between the difficulties of this problem and public opinion: "House, who always sees three months ahead," he wrote, "obviously foresaw the present agitation in the mind of the public here as to the immense sums required by the Allies, and especially by England. The current newspapers are giving much space to the subject of the loans to the Allies, particularly to England."

The difficulties of the financial problem were appreciated quite as keenly by the French Commissioner. Tardieu later wrote of them:

"Without means of payment in dollars . . . the Allies would have been beaten before the end of 1917. America's entry into the war saved them. Before the American soldier, the American dollar turned the tide . . . For Europe, what a stream of gold! But its approaches were crowded. Banker of her Allies since 1914, England came first. France, who had suffered more than England, wanted to be served equally well. The others pressed behind, a clamouring crowd whose enormous estimates frightened the Treasury officials . . . Associated, but not Allied, the United States had authorized its Secretary of the Treasury to grant advances to Europe, but not to enter into definite undertakings. There were to be no bilateral negotiations, no general agreements, no mutual stipulations. The United States in financial matters was to play the part of distributor and arbitrator. That was to be its financial policy.

"This independent policy was justified and strengthened by the unbridled competition of the borrowers, by their ever-outstretched hands, by the astuteness of their ever-increasing demands. American mistrust increased when . . . both London and Paris, on the ground of their financial autonomy, stubbornly opposed the American proposal for an interallied finance board. . . . Every day my government called upon me to obtain regular agreements, which it considered indispensable. Every day the Treasury told me, as it told my colleagues, that it did not intend to enter into any binding agreements. The American Congress had limited the object, the amount, the form of financial assistance. No one could complain that this assistance was not forthcoming. But no one had the right to count upon it."

Wiseman to House

[Cablegram.]

LONDON, Aug. 12, 1927.

I have now seen most people of importance, including the King, Premier, Chancellor the Exchequer. . . . The British government understands, though it is reluctant to admit, the most powerful position of the United States. The British government trusts the President and will give him all information willingly, but certainly did not understand the necessity of keeping him frankly informed of their weakness as well as strength. . . .

WILLIAM WISEMAN.

—BY HELEN ROWLAND—

When a Wife is Just an Accident

THE marriage contract is the only contract a man will sign without bothering to read it over—much less, to consult a lawyer.

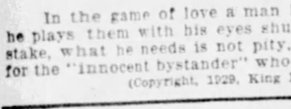
A life partner is the only partner with whom he will cheerfully cast his lot without even looking up her character, or considering her ability to fill the job, her past performances or her future possibilities.

* * *

And yet, everybody soft-heartedly pities a man who is "married to the wrong woman." Everybody "feels so sorry for him." Why—I wonder.



* * *

A husband is a matter of chance or luck—just one of the wedding presents; something that happens to you, like an inheritance or a spring cold. But a wife is a man's own fault.

A woman can't "pick out" a husband from a vast and varied assortment. She can only pick over what's offered and take the best of the lot. But a man can flit about the world, from one rosebud garden of girls to another, until he finds somewhere among the thousand specimens and samples, the One Woman who will fit into his life and make him happy.

If he closes his ears and picks her out entirely "by eye"—for the shape of her nose or the dimples in her knees—why pity him, because she turns out to be a gold-digger or a dancing toy or a dumb-bell with one brain cell and a vanity complex?

* * *

If he insists on marrying a woman, simply because she amuses him and flatters him, why feel sorry for him when she refuses to cook for him or run a vacuum cleaner for him?

* * *

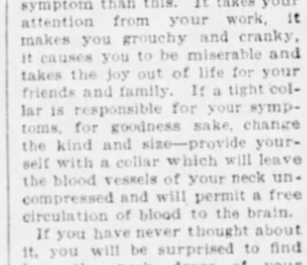
As long as he continues to fall in love through his senses, instead of with his heart and his mind, why mourn for him if he gets something beautiful-but-dumb, who bores him to death or worries him to death?

* * *

As long as he passes by the girl who would steady him and falls for the one who intoxicates him, why shed tears when she drives him to drink?

* * *

As long as he passes up the girl who admires and inspires him, in order to dance after some airy-fairy little temporary diversion who ties him to her chariot wheel, why weep for him, when he is "misunderstood?"



* * *

"If he had had the RIGHT kind of WIFE he would never have gone the pace, forged the check, played the races or gotten tangled up with the other woman!" says the world.

* * *

Of course, he wouldn't! And if he hadn't eaten the lobster or the mushrooms, he never would have had the indigestion. If he had not taken the cocktails he never would have had the headache. Sweet applesauce!

* * *

In the game of love a man holds ALL the winning cards. If he plays them with his eyes shut, when his life's happiness is at stake, what he needs is not pity, but an alienist! Save your pity for the "innocent bystander" whom he happened to marry.

How to Keep Well

—By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND—

Don't Shut Off Free Circulation to Brain

IT is foolish beyond words to wear any article of dress that interferes with your comfort. If there was no other reason than the misery it produces, that would be sufficient reason for discarding any such agony-producing article of attire.

DR. COPELAND

Perhaps the most trying article of a man's dress is the collar. When it comes to this garment there is much more involved than the mere comfort of the wearer. The blood vessels of the neck are limited to a comparatively small area. They are large vessels, carrying quantities of blood to the brain. Some of them are near the surface and easily compressed by external pressure.

Already you have caught the idea I have in mind. If your collar is too tight, it may cut off a very considerable quantity of blood which the brain needs.

The brain cannot function as it should unless there is a never-failing supply of the cobweb-removing and cleansing blood stream. Grass cannot live, wheat cannot grow, flowers cannot bloom, nothing in Nature can survive, without a constant moistening of the roots. How can you expect the roots of the nerves and the cells of the brain to flourish unless they are constantly irrigated by the rich, red blood from your heart?

A tight collar may easily disturb the circulation. In consequence, the blood vessels are squeezed and harm results. One of the early symptoms is headache. Whenever you suffer from headache, my advice to you is to loosen the collar. You will be surprised to find how many times relief comes in a short time if you do this sensible thing.

Speaking of headaches, it seems to me there is no more annoying symptom than this. It takes your attention from your work, it makes you grouchy and cranky, it causes you to be miserable and takes the joy out of life for your friends and family. If a tight collar is responsible for your symptoms, for goodness sake, change the kind and size—provide yourself with a collar which will leave the blood vessels of your neck uncompressed and will permit a free circulation of blood to the brain.

If you have never thought about it, you will be surprised to find how the neck dress of your friends varies. Some of the ladies you know never wear collars. Some of the men you know have collars which compress the neck as a rubber band might do. If I had to choose between one or the other extreme, I should certainly go without the collar.

Bear in mind that the way your collar fits may have a lot to do with your usefulness as a citizen. I am confident his tight collar has reduced the usefulness of many a man.

Answers to Health Queries

A. M. Q.—What would cause a nine-month-old baby to be unable to hold up his head or sit up?

A.—Probably due to rickets, a disease of childhood affecting the structure of the bones and muscles. The diet is one of the most important factors to be considered. Have the baby examined and then definite treatment can be outlined.

J. M. Q.—What causes a five-year-old child to wake up during the night and cry for two or three hours?

LOVE---THE PIRATE!

Drawn by Dorothy Flack

IN DAYS of old, when pirates bold roved the seas, no ship, nor cargo, nor person was safe from their thieving, marauding ways. They were the terror of the seas, and every captain was ever on the lookout for the black flag, flaunting its message of death and destruction from the masthead.

And Dan Cupid, wise in the ways of the world when it was still an infant, watched the pirates and wondered about the whole thing, and promptly took some of the pirates' ideas for his very own. "Ah," thought he, "this pirate game can be aptly applied to my own Game of Love!" So he enlisted a crew and trained them and started them out on the sea of life. And they stole hearts and pilfered whole cargoes of love and brought happiness into the world, which really isn't true piracy.

And Dan found that his new scheme was such a success that he established it as a part of the Game of Love, and ever since all the fair subjects of his kingdom have been carefully trained in the way that all good love pirates should be trained.

It's a fascinating game, only sometimes some of the real pirate feeling creeps in, and then it's disastrous. And it should never be that. Be a love pirate if you must, but be a real love pirate, and use your powers as they should be used—to bring happiness and peace and love and joy into the heart which you have stolen—and the heart which you give.

LOVE'S AWAKENING

A CONTINUATION OF LOVE'S EMBERS

By ADELE GARRISON

Madge Grasps the Chance to Talk to Harry About Marion

BY the time I had finished my little tirade about the impossibility of having Edith Fairfax as a week-end guest until after the Brixtons had come and gone, I realized that Dicky's gaze was no longer truculent, but quizzical.

"You are mistaken," he said airily. "A charming woman guest never could feel 'crowded or uncomfortable or neglected' with me on the job. I should devote my whole time to her. No, no, old dear, you'll have to think up some other excuse."

His eyes were dancing and there was something very like a smirk at the corner of his lips, the sign that he was again salving his vanity with the idea that jealousy of Edith was prompting my reluctance to have her come to us at the time he had named.

The sight of that tiny smirk suddenly iced my jealousy and changed my anger into a frigid determination to discomfit Dicky.

"Oh! I didn't understand," I said in my friendliest tones. "I thought you had planned to be absent when the Brixtons came. But if you're going to be here, that makes all the difference in the world. I'll telephone her at once to save the second week for us."

I rose and started for the door into the hall. But Dicky caught my arm and spun me around, laughing.

"Oh, you've won out," he said. "You know I am not going to be at home when the Brixtons are here, nor when Ede comes either, probably. She's not my guest. You invited her, remember."

"Of course I did," I said, magnanimous in victory. "She hasn't been out for ages, and I don't want her visit to be spoiled. And as for your not being here—that's nonsense. You needn't be here for the Brixtons, but I shall insist upon your coming home while Ede's here."

It took all the determination I had to achieve the casual familiar "Ede," but I managed it and Dicky spread his hands in an exaggerated gesture of submission.

"Whatever Your Majesty orders," he said, but I paid no attention to his nonsense, but asked instead a question which had been intriguing me.

"Will Harry take his car to the city with him if he's going in to stay with you?"

"He won't be in there enough to call it staying," Dicky said a bit crossly. "He said he'd come in and get me settled. No, he won't bring his car. I'll take him and he'll come out on the train. I suppose what you really want to know is who's going to run the car when Harry isn't here. Come on, Harry, tell her."

"I didn't," I protested, flushing, but he paid no attention to my protest.

"That's an easy one, Lady Fair," Harry Underwood said from the doorway. "You are, being the best driver I know of. And I count on you to get Lil over her dislike of driving and make her drive the new boat also."

"I don't know about the last task," I told him, "but I shall be in the seventh heaven driving the car. I broke the tenth commandment all the way out yesterday."

"You won't have to break it any longer, for you probably will be driving it as much as anybody," Mr. Underwood said. "When do you want to try it out?"

I made an instantaneous decision with the remembrance that I wished to talk to him concerning Marion.

"Right now, if convenient to you," I answered. "But, please, don't take anybody else along this first time. I don't want any witnesses, except you, of my first attempt to drive it."

Mr. Underwood put his thumbs in the armholes of his coat and strutted a few steps.

"I guess that sends you out on a twig, Dicky," he said loftily. "Come along, Lady Fair. I knew you were a good driver. I now realize that you also have more than your share of common sense and rare discrimination."

Correct Manners

—By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN—

Reciprocal Thanks

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:
Is it customary for the young man to thank the young lady for the pleasant evening, or is it the young lady's place to thank him? I have always thought that the young man should do the thanking, as he asked the young lady for the evening. A friend and I had quite a dispute on this subject and will you tell us which is correct, please. S. K. Y.

BOTH do a share of thanking. The young man, if he is a well-bred young man, thanks the young lady for going to the party with him. And the young lady, if she is a well-bred young lady, thanks the gentleman for the happy time that she has had and for his hospitality.

Perfectly Correct

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:
I am to be graduated very soon and, as you know, we are to have a class prom. I am quite sure no one will ask me, so I have decided to ask someone (we are allowed to do this.) The young man I want to ask used to be a great friend of mine, and also our families used to be great friends. The last few years we have seen very little of each other. Would it be proper for me to invite him as my guest? SNOOKS.

UNLESS there is some definite reason for the discontinuing of the friendship, some reason that you have not told me, I think that it would be all right for you to invite the young man to your prom. In any case, you might invite him, and then he can do as he pleases about coming. Write a note of invitation—don't invite [illegible]

Explain It

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:
I did not send out any wedding announcements, so acquaintances in the East have not heard of my marriage. I want to send a gift to a young lady and when enclosing our card should I write my maiden name under our name, like this?

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Durand
(Elsa Hendricks.)

READER.

INSTEAD of using this form, I think it would be better for you to write a little note on the back of the card, making the necessary explanation.

Tomorrow's Horoscope

Thursday, February 21.

A VERY lively and important day is the augury based upon two interesting stellar configurations. These point to large and decisive negotiations and operations with leading organizations, and may involve far-reaching and radical change. Travel, reversed plans and new surroundings are probable, but with it all, seemingly of advantage, there is a figure warning against extravagance, hazardous use of funds and ambitions not wholly satisfied.

Those whose birthday it is are assured an interesting year, of initiative, new ventures and possibly radical change in environment and business connections. These may bring great benefits, but only if extravagance, hazardous use of money and a general tendency to "plunge" or speculate be avoided.

A child born on this day may be splendidly endowed in talents and qualities for large adventure and enterprise, but it should be given early training in thrift, prudence and conservative management of its substance.

Great things through great hazards are achieved, and then they shine.—Beaumont and Fletcher.

Ingrown Nail Turns Right Out!

A few drops of "Outgro" in the crevice of the ingrowing nail reduces inflammation and pain and so toughens the tender, sensitive skin underneath the toe nail, that it can not penetrate the flesh, and the nail turns naturally outward almost over night.

"Outgro" is a harmless antiseptic manufactured for chiropodists. However, anyone can buy from the drug store a tiny bottle containing directions.

This week on PENNSYLVANIA DINERS

"... add one bay leaf and a sprig of thyme"

THE recipe reads like poetry! In truth, this is "poetic pie," with all its parts harmonious, blended.

Only the best is used—choice, tender beef, sautéd until brown, then slow-cooked for flavor with rich tomatoes, crisp celery, onions, carrots, one bay leaf and a sprig of thyme!

To these are added lush, melting mushrooms—cooked in butter—salt-seasoned—piqued with a little lemon juice.

Finally—piping hot!—with all its savory juices safe-sealed beneath a golden, flaky pie-crust—this rich delicacy is set before you.

Try it this week—on Pennsylvania diners. Beefsteak and Mushroom Pie!

... under a golden, flaky crust—like a golden crown—this dish is set before you! You'll find a more melodious song within than any number of blackbirds could supply..

GILBERT AND SULLIVAN 'MIKADO' ON AIR TONIGHT

By DARRELL V. MARTIN, Radio Editor.

ONCE again we will hear Gilbert and Sullivan's comic opera, "The Mikado." It is a WJAS feature at 8:30 o'clock.

Russell Kent, president of the National Press Club, will describe the "Political Situation in Washington Tonight" from KDKA at 7:45 p. m., taking the place of Frederick William Wile, who has flown to the Columbia System.

SONGS OF SPAIN

Another KDKA attraction will be a clarinet solo, "Nocturne in F Minor," by Chopin, during the Mobiloil Hour at 8 o'clock. Sam Herman will appear as marimba soloist with the Foresters at 8:30 p. m.

The hymn that has gone down as a big favorite with fans—"The Old Rugged Cross"—will be sung by a quartet from WCAE at 7 tonight.

Nathaniel Shilkret and his orchestra will try a few musical tricks at 7:30 o'clock and at 8 o'clock we will be treated to songs of old Spain by the Serenaders. The Troubadour concert also looks good while the second performance of the Gold Strand Hour should meet with a wide approval.

SWISS BELL RINGERS

Outside of Pittsburgh we think the best bet will be the Swiss yodel songs and bells from WLS at 8:30 o'clock.

This program is indeed something different. Swiss yodel songs, melodies of Switzerland, both old and new, and true Swiss mountain folklore, will be presented. Those taking part include the LaSalle Male Quartet and Swiss Bell Ringers, the Groebecker Sisters, Swiss Alpine Yodelers, and Swiss Joe, zither soloist. Several of these artists have long been favorites on the Chautauqut platform.

It is seldom that the music of Swiss bells is heard on the air and the LaSalle Male Quartet and Swiss Bell Ringers have chosen an unusually delightful group of numbers to display the quality of the bells. Among the melodies to be played will be "The Bells of St. Mary's," "Sunset Chimes," "Sweet and Low," and "Let Me Call You Sweetheart."

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH'S SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

Society Meets at Home Of Mrs. F. I. Merrick For Musicale

EVEN though we're not rushed with social activities these days, we are busy adjusting our mental attitude to these sudden weather changes. On Sunday and Monday the hint of spring in the air gave rise in us to those vague, perturbing emotions designated by the phrase "spring fever;" yesterday and today the sparkling snowflakes whirling playfully about us put most of us in a holiday mood, even though Christmas is many, many months off. And a good thing, too, for many of us who've not recovered from Christmas of 1928.

After thinking about spring weddings earlier in the week, we find ourselves again noting those few events still being held in the city.

THIS morning many society women still in the city attended another of the Wednesday musicales, held this month in the home of Mrs. Frederic Ickes Merrick, of Holyrood road, Morewood Heights. Heretofore, if I remember correctly, the musicales have been in the home of Mrs. Taylor Allderdice.

Mrs. Howard Noble, first violin; Mrs. Virginia Wilharm, pianist, and Jean Wessner, 'cellist, played several groups. Piano solos were played by Mrs. George Willock. And the singer of the morning was Esther Edmondson, soprano, who recently won first prize in a contest conducted for singers by a radio company.

EVEN though the wedding will be small much interest is being taken in social and art circles in the marriage on February 27 of Mary Louise McBride, niece of Mrs. Edwin Lewis Porter, of St. James street, and Homer Saint-Gaudens, of Pittsburgh and Cornish, N. H.

Both the bride-elect and Mr. Saint-Gaudens will be unattended, I understand. The ceremony will be performed that evening at 7:30 o'clock in the home of the bride's aunt, with the Rev. Dr. Hugh Thomson Kerr, pastor of the Shadyside Presbyterian Church, as officiant.

They are planning a European trip as a honeymoon. Upon their returne they will be at home in the Bellefield Apartments.

WHILE we are talking about weddings, I wonder if you've heard that Harriet McGaw Woodbury, daughter of the Thornton Woodburys, of Paris, and John Caldwell Welwood, Jr., son of the John Caldwell Welwoods, of New York, will be married Saturday afternoon in New York in the chantry of St. Thomas's Church?

James Todd, of Sewickley, will be Mr. Welwood's best man, I've learned.

MARGARET SHAW, of Glenshaw, will be back from Europe the latter part of March, did you know? Margaret has been abroad since August. Most of her time she has been in the Hebrides studying Gaelic and the old Gaelic folk songs and folk lore. Margaret is deeply interested in music, I happen to know, and probably will bring back with her many of the quaint songs of the imaginative Gaelic race.

* * *

OF course I've succumbed again to the temptation of chatting about traveling Pittsburghers. So I might just as well tell you I've heard of another girl who's away, Polly Kelly, daughter of the Samuel B. Kellys, of South Negley avenue, is visiting friends in Augusta, Ga.

* * *

MRS. MICHAEL INBODEN, of Heberton avenue, has announced the marriage of her daughter, Miss Margaret Amelia Inboden, and William Elwood Balliet, of Baltimore, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Balliet, of Milton, Pa., which was solemnized Monday at 10 a. m. in Calvary Episcopal Church by the Rev. Dr. Edwin J. Van Etten. After an eastern trip, Mr. and Mrs. Balliet will be at home in Baltimore.

* * *

MR. AND MRS. B. C. LYTLE, of Hillcrest street, East End, announce the marriage of their daughter, Miss Ethel Blanche Lytle, to Herman Starr, of Parnassus, which was solemnized August 23 at Huntingdon, Pa.

* * *

MISS ELLEN HOOTMAN, of Washington, Pa., entertained with a bridge luncheon Saturday in her home in honor of Miss Mildred West, of Barnes street, Wilkinsburg, whose engagement to Lucian Leroy Leape, of Covington, Va., was announced recently. Valentine decorations were used.

* * *

MRS. MAURICE B. COHILL and her daughter, Beverly Cohill, of Walnut road, Ben Avon, have returned from Atlantic City and Woonsocket, R. I., where they visited Mrs. Cohill's parents, Dr. and Mrs. E. D. Clarke.

PRIDE of Pittsburgh Council No. 3, Daughters of America, will hold a card party tonight in its council rooms in Penn avenue. Mrs. Edna McCutcheon is chairman.

* * *

MRS. WALTER J. REID and her son, Walter J. Reid, Jr., of West Hutchinson avenue, Regent Square, are spending the winter in Miami Beach, Fla.

Musical Club Hears Finished Program

ONE of the most professional programs, both as to arrangement and performance, ever presented before the Tuesday Musical Club was that given yesterday in upper Memorial Hall. Mrs. James H. Greene arranged the recital and Tuesday Musical members have come to expect something out of the ordinary when Mrs. Greene's name is associated with a program.

To begin with there was a beautifully arranged stage setting of white lattice work and foliage with a marquee. The program opened with the Tannhauser March and the Prelude to Lohengrin by the new (this season) orchestra ensemble, whose members, under the baton of Ruth Thoburn Knox, play with a unity and musicianship that have already achieved them a worth while standing. Next came the baritone air, "O du mein holder Abendstern," from Tannhauser, sung by Julius Huehn, and the Elisabeth aria, "Dich theure Halle," from the same Wagner opera, by Esther Edmundson. Then quite an extensive bit from Hansel and Gretel which was staged by Mme. Suzanne Karpova, and sung by Virginia Kendrick, Helen Marquis, Marie Crawford Pease and Jean McCrory Newman. The climax of the program came in its final number, a scene from Faust, which Helen Bell Rush, John Dickson Fulton and Margaret Garrity sang with great artistry. All the numbers were given in costume and with noteworthy smoothness and finish.

The accompaniments, which added much to the beauty of the program, were by Mary Redmond, violin; Alyce H. Martin, violoncello; Marian Clark Bollinger, piano, and Mrs. Greene, organ.

For the tea which followed hostesses were Mrs. Nelson Clarke, Mrs. Albert Hamilton, Mrs. Austin George, Mrs. Robert Entwistle, Miss Florence Whitmire, Miss Belle Whitmire, Mrs. V. A. Sandles and Miss Melissa Johnston.

THE nominating committee of the Congress of Clubs has prepared its ticket and will report to the board of directors within a few days. It is generally understood that the committee's unanimous choice for the presidency is Mrs. Ralph W. Johnston, prominent not only in Pittsburgh club work but in the state also. Mrs. Johnston is now chairman of international relations in the State Federation, was vice president-at-large for two years, recording secretary for more than four years and also has served as first vice president. She is both a life and charter member of the Congress on whose board of directors she has served for many years, having begun her work with that organization as program chairman during the administration of Miss Helen Grimes. Mrs. Johnston is also a member of the Woman's Club of the City of Pittsburgh, of the Tourists, Daughters of the American Pioneers and of the Tuesday Musical Club.

Mrs. D. Edwin Miller's resignation as first vice president was accepted by the board at a meeting held yesterday afternoon and in her place Mrs. F. H. Burdick was elected. Mrs. Charles S. Miller was moved into the third vice presidency and Mrs. James C. Mace becomes corresponding secretary, all to serve until May 1.

Miner's Head Causes Fatal Fall of Rock

FROSTBURG, Md., Feb. 20.—Robert Plummer, 34, employed in the Midlothian mine of the McNeill Coal Company, near here, was killed while riding a car into the mine when his head struck the roof, dislodging a fall of rock.

The Sun-Telegraph Fifteen Cent Pattern

A DISTINCTIVE STYLE.

Here is the dress that will please the girl who wants something different. The fronts close at scalloped edges, above a plaited skirt. Inverted tucks afford becoming fulness at the shoulders which are lengthened to form short sleeve portions. To these short sleeve sections may be added which are gathered to a narrow wrist puff. This is an excellent model for printed tweed, voile, georgette or linen, also for these materials unprinted. As pictured, printed crepe in blue and beige on a background of darker blue was used. The waist may be closed from right to left, or from left to right.

The pattern is cut in four sizes: 8, 10, 12 and 14 years. To make the dress for a 14-year size as pictured in the large view will require 4¾ yards of 36-inch material. If made with long sleeves 4¾ yards will be required. To face the belt with contrasting material requires ¼ yard 36 inches wide. To finish the dress as illustrated will require 2¾ yards of bias binding.

COUPON.

Hit-and-Run Driver Jailed in Killing

WASHINGTON, Feb. 20.—Not guilty of involuntary manslaughter but guilty of failure to stop and render assistance was the verdict returned by the jury here in the trial of Walter Porter, 25, of Addiston street, employe of the Merchants Creamery Company, who ran down and fatally injured Thomas Varley, 68, on December 5. Judge James I. Brownson sentenced Porter to three months in the County Jail, pay the costs and a fine of $300

Milk-Stealing Dog Shot, Farmer Fined

WAYNESBURG, Pa., Feb. 20.—The antics of a hound dog in drinking the contents of a bowl of milk at the home of Elzie Green, Cumberland Township farmer, ended in court here yesterday, when Green was fined $25 and costs for assaulting R. F. Justus, aged owner of the dog and neighbor of Green. The assault followed a quarrel between the two men after Green admitted shooting the dog following its theft of the milk.

Ex-Police Official Guilty of Extortion

WASHINGTON, Pa., Feb. 20.—Frank B. Kane, former second lieutenant of the Monongahela City police force, discharged because of irregularities, was convicted on extortion charges yesterday. He furnished $3,000 bail.

Bail of Archie Kennedy, first lieutenant of the Monongahela department, who was discharged with Kane, was also fixed at $3,000. Kennedy pleaded guilty to extortion.

TEXAS' GAINS TOLD HEARST EXECUTIVES

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., Feb. 20.—Hearst newspaper executives last night heard the story of the Southwest from the lips of the men who are pushing back the frontiers of a rugged cow country and turning the reclaimed land into a veritable fairyland.

The story was unfolded at a dinner given the visiting newspaper men by the San Antonio Chamber of Commerce. The executives are here for their annual convention.

From the lips of J. H. Kirkpatrick, the editors heard how the Southwest was being chained to the humming wheels of industry and commerce and agriculture. He said:

"A few years ago this country about you was nothing but desert land. Cows grazed on land that felt the dampness of rain only a few times a year. Now beef cattle and dairy cows graze on land that is irrigated through the harnessing of feeders to the Rio Grande River.

COULD SURVIVE ALONE

"The land has been made productive until today a fence could be built around the state of Texas and the people could survive without outside aid. Everything man needs is somewhere within the borders."

Military aviation was described by Brig. Gen. Frank P. Lahm, commander of the Intermediate Air Corps training center. He briefly outlined the aims of his department and the part it is playing in developing Southwest Texas and the nation.

Col. Frank Knox, general manager of the Hearst newspapers, responded for the executives. He said that William Randolph Hearst and all of his publishers and editors were proud of being identified with the development of the Southwest and that they would unstintingly work with the Southwest for its development.

Col. William McIntosh, publisher of the San Antonio Light, presided at the dinner.

WREATHS AT ALAMO

Before the dinner, George Hearst, of San Francisco, son of William Randolph Hearst, placed two wreaths of American beauty roses at the Alamo, "Cradle of Texas Liberty."

"The wreaths, Mr. Hearst said, were "dedicated to those men who died without a thought of surrendering the principles of feedom for which they were fighting, and in commemoration of this spirit of free government."

DON'T LET YOUR HANDS GET OLD!

Two-Minute Test Proves Them Naturally Young and Attractive

HERE'S good news for the capable woman who is not afraid to use her hands, even though she has not always been able, hitherto, to keep them as daintily smooth and white and young as she would like to have them.

No matter how busy your clever hands may be at housekeeping or office tasks, no matter how much you may have them in and out of water, you can now easily keep them as delightfully young-looking and attractive as the idlest hands.

It takes only two minutes—scarcely that—to give them this marvelous new kind of massage. No fuss, no bother. You just rub a little THINC Hand Creme (pronounced "think") into your parched, red hands. You note a startling improvement the very first time you try THINC. It instantly whitens your hands, smoothes away all roughness and every tiny wrinkle. Gives your hands the texture and color of white rose petals!

Even the first two-minute test shows you how lovely your hands can be, how interesting and attractive. With this consistent daily care your hands need never become old-looking or unsightly. They will always be dazzling-white, soft, supple.

Entirely New

THINC is an entirely new preparation, specially designed to preserve the youthful alabaster whiteness and smoothness of the hands. It is not a cold cream, vanishing cream or lotion, but a cream for the hands. It can be used freely, for it never leaves a trace of greasiness. So remarkable are THINC'S many virtues, it has won the unqualified endorsement of Good Housekeeping

Try the two-minute test! If you are not delighted with THINC Hand Creme, it won't cost you anything. It is guaranteed, money back if not satisfied.

You can get THINC at any drug store, toilet counter or beauty shop.

It's New! The Growth Vitamin of Sunlight

put in a hot breakfast food

Irradiation of Quaker Farina by Ultra-Violet Rays important new food development

NOW a way has been found to bring you and your children at the breakfast table that "something" in sunlight which has such a tremendously beneficial effect upon health; which makes children's bones grow straight and strong; their teeth harden and become durable. Vitamin "D," scientists have named this mysterious quality.

The famous hot breakfast cereal, Quaker Farina, is now given Vitamin "D" by irradiation with Ultra Violet Light under the Steenbock Process. When children grow up "sun starved" for lack of Vitamin "D" they are apt to show it by bow legs. Their teeth are soft. They don't eat; they are "always having colds." As high as 90% of city children show signs of Vitamin "D" deficiency say health authorities. This fact makes the need of finding new ways to get "sunshine" of prime importance.

By irradiation with Ultra-Violet Light Quaker Farina, famous hot breakfast food, is given Vitamin "D" in a form that can be easily passed on to you! An exceedingly important discovery, authorities call this. Won't you try it? Irradiated Quaker Farina is the creamy white heart of the wheat. An energy food of fine flavor. "Irradiation" doesn't change this, nor its appearance. And now it has an added health value that no other hot cereal can claim! Your grocer has irradiated Quaker Farina. NOTE: All Quaker Farina is irradiated even though some packages are not so marked.

Small danger of "sun starvation" here!

COUNTY'S PAINT CONTRACT ILLEGAL, M'GOVERN SAYS

Bids submitted to the county commissioners by the W. W. Lawrence Company and the John Lucas Company, Inc., were in violation of an act of Assembly and they may be rejected by the board of commissioners, C. C. McGovern, a member of the board alleges. Representatives of the two companies will be asked to have representatives appear before the board.

Commissioner McGovern states the Lawrence company is a Pennsylvania corporation with capital stock of $200,000, par value of $100, paid up and held by John Lucas, who also is a member of the Lawrence Company board of directors. McGovern states that no two companies, so affiliated, may legally submit bids for the same material.

The Lawrence Company was given a contract of $5,162.30 for supplying 4,200 gallons of paint for the county. The bid of the Lucas concern was much higher, being $8,053.80. The commissioners, while believing there is no connivance in submitting the bids, desire an explanation.

CLEAN KIDNEYS BY DRINKING LOTS OF WATER

Eating too much rich food may produce kidney trouble in some form, says a well-known authority, because the acids created excite the kidneys. Then they become overworked, get sluggish, clog up and cause all sorts of distress, particularly backache and misery in the kidney region, rheumatic twinges, severe headaches, acid stomach, constipation, torpid liver, sleeplessness, bladder and urinary irritation.

The moment your back hurts or kidneys aren't acting right, or if bladder bothers you, begin drinking lots of good water and also get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to activity; also to neutralize the acids in the system so that they no longer irritate, thus often relieving bladder disorders.

Jad Salts cannot injure anyone; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which millions of men and women take now and then to help keep the kidneys and urinary organs clean, thus often avoiding serious kidney disorders.

Funds for Traffic Count Appropriated

Council yesterday affirmed the payment of $900 to the Boy Scouts for a traffic count to be taken in May. The approval stipulated, however, that the money must be taken from the Bureau of Traffic Planning's fund instead of from the general fund, as requested by Director of Public Safety James M. Clark.

HIRE HELP AT HOME, M'GOVERN'S PLEA

SIDEWALKS OF PITTSBURGH

by HAVEY J. BOYLE

BRIDGE players were interested in the description of American bridge by Ernest Heinrichs, a Pittsburgher, in the Pittsburgh Sunday Sun-Telegraph. American bridge eliminates the auction bridge premium for honors and borrows from contract bridge that good feature which gives the bidder just what he bids—and no more.

* * *

There is no sound argument against eliminating the score for honors. As Mr. Heinrichs points out there is no reason why a player should get a special premium simply because he or she was lucky in the draw of good cards. The fact that the good cards will enable the bidder to make "game" certainly calls for no further reward in the way of honors.

* * *

THE move to give a bidder credit only for what he or she bids is common sense, too. It will stimulate bidding in the game, for one thing, and it will reward the shrewd players who can evaluate their hands properly. That system is now employed, of course, in contract bridge. Where American bridge differs from contract bridge is in the penalties and premiums. Instead of the complex scoring prevalent in contract bridge, American bridge would stick to the rewards and penalties now prevailing in auction bridge.

American bridge is designed for those who would like the stimulation of bidding as produced by contract bridge, but who would be more conservative in the scoring than are devotees of the contract game.

If the foregoing has about it any smugness to indicate that this writer has the game of bridge just about where he wants it—in other words that he can make it say "Uncle"— kindly scratch off that impression. One need not be an expert to see the weakness of the honor score and one need not be a Work to see how the game will be even more interesting with a player taxed to bid three no trump, instead of bidding one no trump and winning three tricks over the book.

HONORS in bridge have been as much a mystery here as why in poker a flush beats a straight. Hands are rated according to which are the easier or harder to make. Three deuces beat two deuces because it is more difficult to get three than two, as some of you have disconsolately observed. With a "straight" being more difficult to make than a flush—eight chances out of 48 opposed to nine chances out of 48 where a flush is concerned—long have poker players sat up late at night, even unto dawn, trying to figure that, as well as other things, out.

In fact, the problem is such a nice one that poker players homeward bound, hearing the ominous creak of the milk wagon as dawn breaks over yonder hill, might easily frame a perfect alibi for the War Department sitting in a window seat, rather foolishly, instead of being sound asleep as all good War Departments should be at such an unearthly hour. "What kept you so late," asks the W. D. "I was trying to figure out the bad arithmetic involved in evaluating a flush and straight." Chances are she will fall asleep as you go into the figures.

OBJECTS TO CHICAGOAN FOR POOLS

"I don't see why Allegheny County should make a practice of bringing in out-of-town engineers and workmen for projects here when we have such fine engineers in our own district," Commissioner C. C. McGovern protested when the board today discussed the hiring of Jens Jensen, Chicago architect, to supervise the building of the county swimming pools.

Director Paul B. Riis, of the county parks, in which the pools are to be built, explained that the work was not an engineering job, but an architectural problem and he believed Mr. Jensen the most able man for this work. Director Riis stated he was trying to make the pools something of natural beauty, as part of the entire park scheme.

Mr. Jensen is asking 5 per cent of the entire cost of the work, $1,000 down payment and the balance as the work proceeds. He also asks $200 for each visit to the work, or $50 and expenses for one of his assistants if it is necessary. He also states that one of his men shall be employed at $50 a week and expenses. The pools will cost $240,670.

Director Riis was not given permission to hire the Chicago architect as the board wished to get more details of the cost from Mr. Jensen and a better contract.

East Liberty's branch is the first city station to be constructed in recent years. Several borough stations have been built, but none of the city branches have been replaced. Plans for the new postoffice headquarters at Liberty avenue and Grant street are almost complete, Postmaster George W. Gosser said, but work will not be started for some weeks.

EQUIPMENT NEW

East Liberty's new branch is a two-story structure with a working area of 23,000 square feet. It cost about $250,000. The equipment is all new and in the opinion of Supt. Cuppers it will be the most modern branch in the country.

Will Rogers Says

NEW YORK, Feb. 20.

How do we stand all this uncertainty? Here it is only ten days till inauguration time and we don't know what Mr. Hoover is going to do. And we don't know what Mr. Coolidge is going to do.

Lindbergh is the only one of our three prominent men who is not ashamed to have it known in advance what he is going to do.

Mr. Hoover ought to out of courtesy to its members announce his cabinet at once, for just lots of times a cabinet attracts more attention between the time they are announced, and the time they take seats, than they ever do afterwards.

Yours, WILL.

Weather Conditions.

The high that was centered over the northern plains during the past few days moved rapidly eastward. It is now centered over Lake Erie, and covers the Ohio Valley states and southwestward to Texas. It produced a decided drop in temperature over all the states east of the Mississippi except along the South Atlantic coast. The temperatures are near zero over all the Ohio Valley states and the lake region.

The low that was centered over Alberta yesterday morning is now centered over Southern Saskatchewan and Manitoba, lowest barometer 29.34 inches at Minnedosa, and extends southward over the Dakotas and the eastern slope of the Rocky Mountains almost to the Mexican border. It is causing some cloudiness over the Northwest and a marked rise in temperature. In North Dakota the temperature rose 64 degrees in the last 24 hours.

River Conditions.

The rivers are stationary at low stages. The Allegheny River is covered with ice 6 to 10 inches thick from a short distance above Pittsburgh to the headwaters. Stage at Pittsburgh is 10.9 feet; Dam No. 2, 8.7, and Dam No. 6, 8.0. The dams are up.

What Shall I Do for Gray Hair?

By ALICE STRAWN

I am often asked for a good way to restoregray, faded or streaked hair. While there are many preparations on the market for the purpose, I know of nothing better than a mixture of good old sage tea and sulphur. You can either prepare the mixture at home yourself, or as most women prefer, buy it already prepared and ready to use.

The correct recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, may be had in Wyeth's Sage & Sulphur Compound. All druggists carry it and since the cost is only 75c a bottle, there is really no need for any woman to go to the bother of preparing it herself. You would be surprised if you knew the number of men and women who employ Wyeth's Sage & Sulphur because its use is undetectable.

You simply moisten a comb or a soft brush with it and draw it through your hair, one small strand at a time. By morning the gray disappears and another application or two sees your hair beautifully and evenly restored to its full original color. There is no suggestion of that hard, dyed look that repels fastidious women. I advise any woman—or man—whose hair is turning gray to try Wyeth's Sage & Sulphur.

Real Estate

Frank R. Phillips, vice president and general manager of the Duquesne Light Company, told the Pittsburgh Real Estate Board yesterday about the company's plans for expansion on Brunot's Island. He said that the company is only anticipating the needs of the district and that within the next year the demand for electric power will make the $40,000,000 plant a necessity. The location for the plant was selected after a careful study of the residential and industrial sections of Pittsburgh.

A nine-room brick residence at 311 Melwood street, East End, lot 25x100 feet, has been sold by Frank T. Lauinger for S. Leo Ruslander to George Hegerich for $12,000.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

SUNDOWN

By WILLIAM ALLEN WARD

WITH the freedom of a Southwest breeze, Dick Fletcher, Texas ranger, entered the Almighty Dollar Cafe in Loboville and ordered a drink. The ride from the Turkey Track, up on the Devil's River, in the face of a cutting south wind, filled with the red sands of the Texas Big Bend district, had created a thirst. Dick had been on the north line of the Turkey Track "sight-seeing" for Old Man Dugan, the cattleman, who was anxious to know the whereabouts of several hundred steers that had mysteriously drifted into strange valleys.

It was noon and the Texas sun burned on the simmering wastelands like a spotlight. Dick brushed the dust from his sombrero and leaned against the bar. In the rear of the saloon he observed three men engaged at stud.

"Have a drink," Dick sang out good-naturedly.

After a moment's delay one of the trio, a slouchy-looking fellow, lazily arose from the table and started toward the bar. In an instant Dick discovered the identity of the stranger. The unshaven face and the broad-brimmed hat with huge holes in the crown, evidently cut there for the purpose of admitting cooling air, marked the man as Six-Gun Dellenger, foreman of the Triple-X outfit that lay to the north of the Turkey Track.

Dellenger was trailed to the bar by the other men whom Dick easily recognized as Red Oleson and Barney Grimes, both Triple-X cow-hands.

"Take a man's drink," drawled Six-Gun Dellenger as he leaned against the bar, "and my pards here, Oleson and Grimes, are takin' the same thing."

The barkeep served the drinks.

Dick dropped a coin on the bar and started to leave.

"Just a minute, Pard," said Six-Gun Dellenger, tapping Dick on the shoulder, "a little matter we would like to take up with you. It's now 1 o'clock. Better make it a point to be out of town by sundown!"

There was silence for a full minute.

Then a smile played about Dick's face.

"Kind of you to give me until sundown to leave the fair city of Loboville."

Then Dick Fletcher walked from the Almighty Dollar saloon.

"I have got the goods on Six-Gun Dellenger's gang," said Dick Fletcher as he entered the office of Sheriff Gorman, of Alamo County. "A month's visit to the headwaters of the Devil's River showed me many details of this cattle rustling game."

"I got the 'low-down' on Six-Gun when I hid on the tiptop of Shotgun Butte and saw his gang drive 100 head of Turkey Track cattle into Canyon Lobo," continued Dick. "I saw the rustlers build their fire and apply the branding iron. The moon was full and bright and I didn't have a bit of trouble telling what was taking place."

The Sheriff picked up three blank complaints and started filling them out.

"Of course you will sign the complaint charging cattle stealing," said the Sheriff.

"Sure," said Dick as he inscribed his name in the proper place at the end of the long legal document.

"Another matter," said Dick. "Don't amount to much, but I might add that the Dellenger gang has given me until sundown to leave this town.....Six-gun indicated there might be a little shooting affair if I still lingered around here after the sun said good-night!"

Dick rolled a cigaret and walked leisurely from the sheriff's office. In his pocket he carried a pair of new hand-cuffs, bought a few days ago at a hardware shop in Eagle Pass.

He saw a group standing in front of the Almighty Dollar Saloon and walked in that direction. Red Oleson and Barney Grimes, were entertaining the crowd by reciting all the details of the crisp order or departure given by Six-gun Dellenger to the "meddlesome stranger" a short time before in the Almighty Dollar Saloon. Six-gun Dellenger was not to be seen.

Dick took another step forward. At that instant Barney Grimes made a hip pocket move. Dick Fletcher's hands worked lightning movements and in a fragment of time Grimes and Oleson faced their captor.

"Take your 'guns' out of your pockets," ordered Fletcher, "but be sure you drop them shooting rods on the ground. No foolishness. I'm Dick Fletcher, sergeant of the Texas Rangers, and I am not craving any foolish movements on the part of a pair of cheap cattle-rustling polecats."

Oleson and Grimes knew they were beaten. They removed their six shooters and dropped them, as commanded on the ground. Then Dick Fletcher took the handcuffs and proceeded to fasten the two men together, gripping the left wrist of Oleson to the right wrist of Grimes.

"Now you gents are at liberty," said Fletcher. "Of course, you needn't start any foolishness, for such acts will result in serious disorders. Otherwise you may have the freedom of the streets until Sheriff Gorman, of Alamo County, arrives."

The sun was slowly approaching the tip of the hills. Six-Gun Dellenger, notorious Texas bad man, had remained in seclusion during the afternoon. Fletcher, after handcuffing Six-Gun's associates, had walked freely about the streets in the hope of encountering the dread bad man.

But Dellenger, from an upstairs window, had observed the handcuffing of his men. He was in the room of Deadwood Lou, notorious barroom siren of the Texas Big Bend district. Deadwood Lou was temporarily in love with Six-Gun, and she offered him the protection of her darkened bedroom.

The sun tipped the low range of foothills.

Dellenger peeped out of Deadwood Lou's window and observed Dick Fletcher standing in front of the Almighty Dollar saloon. He raised the window curtain just an inch and took steady aim.

A curl of smoke and then—Dick Fletcher reeled for a second.

Another curl of smoke!

Six-gun Dellenger staggered for an instant and plunged head-first through the upstairs window, crumpling on the small second story porch. Dick's bullet had pierced his heart.

Then, Dick Fletcher, sergeant of Texas Rangers, calmly carved another notch on his six-gun.

"Have to get another ranger star," Dick drawled in low tones to Sheriff Gorman who stood near removing the handcuffs from Grimes and Oleson.

"How come?" questioned Sheriff Gorman.

Fletcher completed the notch. "Why, Six-gun Dellenger was the best shot in the Big Bend district and he always shot straight at the heart! So I just put my thick Texas ranger badge over that organ and walked along the sidewalk watching for a curl of smoke!"

With a hearty laugh Dick Fletcher waved a goodbye to Sheriff Gorman and rode away.

It was sundown in Loboville.

Felicia's Husband Vows He Will Force Her to Drop Divorce Suit

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Bound for Reno to get a divorce, and ashamed of the fact because he believes the wreck of his home signifies a colossal failure on his part, Dick Stuyvesant meets Felicia Brett on the train. He lies to her about his destination, saying he is going to Sacramento. She tells him she is on the way to San Francisco to join her father. At the hotel in Reno he finds that an old friend, John Berkeley, affectionately known as J. B., has invited him to share his suite. J. B., confirmed bachelor and rake, hears Dick's story of his marital crash and urges him to forget all about it and take life as he finds it. Dick is half convinced that J. B.'s outlook on life is correct, but he decides he will not give way to such a useless existence so long as there are in the world good women like the girl he met on the train. The next day Dick sees Felicia lunching with two college boys and Peg Hodge, with whom she is visiting. She does not see him and Dick, hurt, and angry and suspecting the worst, plunges into the gayety of the divorce colony. At a party given that night by Lola Penny to celebrate the granting of her divorce, he flirts and drinks with Betty Rogers, a snappy little Southerner also in Reno for "The Cure." They are sobered as Lola drinks poison.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER III.

LOLA PENNY had taken poison, yet her guests continued to stand, rooted, frozen to inaction by the incredible horror of the moment. Someone raised her head and shoulders, supported her. There was a certain curious dignity about her even as she lay before them, a personification of the stark tragedy underlying Reno's mad search for sensation.

"Yesterday," she whispered, "I got my decree—and I've just realized that I love my husband, that I'll never love anyone else! This life I've been living—this gaiety, this frenzy—has been a farce. It's been like being drunk! Now I'm sober . . . And I've thrown away his love, his respect. God! What a ghastly mistake . . ." She slumped down suddenly.

The spell was broken—everyone was moving, now. Women's voices rose hysterically; men shouted orders—telephones—the doctor arrived . . .

Across the continent, in New York City, Alexander W. Brett, retired diplomat and yachtsman sat in the living room of his spacious Park avenue apartment, facing Felicia's mother. His white hair flowed back from a massive brow, his piercing black eyes gleamed with a harshness that the years had not been able to dim. His fingers, long and thin and cruel gripped the edge of the huge carved chair as he watched the woman pacing before him, lithe and graceful as a panther.

"You are her mother?" he said, fiercely, accusingly. "You must have known something of her plans!"

Adrienne Henley-Martin whirled, a silhouette of fury against the magnificent tapestry which covered the broad wall behind her. Brett was many years her senior, yet he flinched before the sudden flame in her eyes.

"Well," he growled, "didn't she tell you anything?"

"Of course she didn't!" She flung her words at him. "If she had—" Brilliant, cold and hard as the chain of diamonds about her surprisingly youthful throat, she glared at her son-in-law. Then she shuddered. "Reno!" she said, incredulously. "Reno!"

Brett did not shudder; thirty-five years in the diplomatic service teach one to remain calm—even in the face of a divorce scandal. But his eyes blazed into the tapestry, as though they must burn through it.

Reno! It was inconceivable! How could Felicia have done this thing? Deserted him—him, Alexander W. Brett! There could be no excuse for such conduct, none! Newspaper headlines . . . disgrace . . . His fingers tightened their grip on the chair. Well, he had always ruled her; he would rule her now—more steel than ever . . .

His voice was harsh. "She shall never go through with it! I won't permit it!"

And Felicia's mother, watching Felicia's husband, sensed for the first time an inherent cruelty, even brutality, in the man.

"She's probably gone to the Hodges," she said. "And of course Ann and Tom will pet her and encourage her to do anything she likes!"

Her brows drew together in a frown. She wished, now, that she had not been so democratic as to permit this friendship with the Hodges, begun 20 years before, when Felicia, a tiny and rather neglected child, had found in the farmhouse of the doctor and his wife—young then—all the pleasures her own imposing home had lacked. Homely pleasures—cows to follow home across the meadow at sunset with collie dogs barking about their legs, lilac clumps, homemade bread, sweet, old-fashioned flowers.

"Extraordinary that Felicia should have kept up that friendship!" gritted Brett.

Adrienne Henley-Martin nodded. It was extraordinary, for the girl had been only 19 when the Hodges moved to Nevada, and—

"Adrienne!" Brett's tense voice cut like a knife through her thoughts. "There must be no reserve between us, now! Is there—do you think there is a man involved in this?"

Her anger had died down, but now it flared again.

"Alex, you're an old fool!" she flung at him.

The man stiffened in his chair. "You think that!" He sprang up, hands clenched. "You think I've had no eyes?" He towered before her, threateningly.

"You married Felicia to me!" he accused her. "It was your plan, your idea, from the first. She was a child! I know as well as you do that she never loved me! And now you expect me to believe that she has been faithful!"

Felicia's mother laughed scornfully. "An old fool!" she repeated her words, watching him wince. "And now, when you can't hold her you try to shift the blame for your marriage to me! And you talk of other men! Look at yourself in a mirror, Alex!"

"I've always suspected her!" The barriers were down; Brett was at last giving vent to long-unspoken words. "In Cairo, where men hung about her like flies! In Paris! In London! Here in New York! There was a young attache in Washington—" Accusation rushed from his lips in an angry torrent, and Adrienne Henley-Martin stood aghast.

"You know that's not true!" Finally she had forced her voice above his own. "Felicia is as innocent as a baby! She—"

"How do I know she's innocent?" Brett had lost all control. Old fool, indeed! He caught Adrienne's wrist in a grip of steel. "There's going to be no scandal dragging my name through the papers, d'you hear me?" he told her, fiercely.

His fury had added 10 years to his age; Adrienne realized that she was gazing upon an old man.

"Pull yourself together, Alex!" she commanded, sharply. "I don't want a scandal any more than you do!"

Trembling, Brett crossed the room and poured himself a glass of brandy. Felicia's mother watched him speculatively. No, life with this man would be no bed of roses—but what life was? Her eyes narrowed. Felicia was 26, now—old enough to appreciate the advantages of being Mrs. Alexander W. Brett, old enough to adjust herself to her situation. And—Adrienne's calm eyes, hard now, did not flicker—Brett wouldn't live forever! Far better for Felicia to wait . . .

The brandy had steadied him. "I shall put an end to this nonsense at once!" he said.

Mrs. Henley-Martin raised her eyebrows. "Shall you go out there? To Reno?"

He nodded. "I will bring her back with me."

For an instant they were silent. Then, as though for the first time considering the possibility, Adrienne spoke:

"Suppose she refuses to return?"

Brett smiled grimly.

"She will not refuse!" he said.

His voice, as well as his smile, had become ugly, ominous. Felicia's mother looked at him in sudden alarm. After all, Felicia had been treated rather badly in this marriage.

"What makes you so sure?" she asked, apprehensively. "What will you do?" For the first time since her success in getting this man into her family, seven years before, fear for her daughter found a place in her heart.

What can Brett do to force his wife to return to him? Follow his plans in this newspaper tomorrow.

NANCY DEANE By Roy L. Foley

CHAPTER XXXIX.

DAYS, days, days, maddening days that were ever alike for Nancy.

"We'll just let things run on as they have been . . . when you are well again we can go to Europe . . . take this child with us . . . long, long time."

The words of Mrs. Deane had been beating in Nancy's brain for a week now, and still Montgomery Deane lay still and white in the big bedroom in the big house on Fifth avenue.

"The newspapers mustn't have it—"

Nancy attacked the heap of letters to be filed, the accumulation of the three days she had stayed away from the office after she had learned that Howard Wescott had a wife.

He had come to her a day later—she thought of it now, she had to credit him with the way he told his story. At least he had been truthful. He begged her to listen. He told her that he and Peggy Spoffard Boyden had planned to marry before Nancy had come to work at the Ever-Wear Mills. He confessed that at first he had become "interested in Nancy, that later she had fascinated him more and more, that he had "lost his head" that he had made love to her when he knew he was deceiving her.

"I knew I couldn't marry you, really," he said. "I, I, well what's the use of trying to explain?"

She knew then that she didn't love him. That she never had loved him in the real sense of the word. She knew then that she had been infatuated with his manners and his looks, that confidence of his. She knew he was a snob, but a gentleman—No!

Well, he wasn't so confident now.

She looked at him, his well made clothes, his smooth hair, and the smooth hair made her think of John Blair's unruly hair—the little lock that always stuck up in the back—and again she uttered a silent prayer for her escape.

"Nancy," he had said, "I wish I could undo the whole thing. Why, if I'd known you were the granddaughter of Montgomery Deane when you came to work here—why, the Deanes are important people, they're—"

No, Nancy didn't love him, she never really had, she couldn't now, certainly.

The things he was saying convinced her of that, but what her own heart told her was more convincing than his words.

Yes, she would go back to the office for awhile, for the looks of the thing. Maybelle Montague, no one, must know that she had been hurt and shamed. It was only for a little while, a little while.

How different the office was now. The door of the inner office was wide open these days. From where Nancy sat she could look into the room where Wescott's desk was. It was clear of papers. The shining glass top of it was free of everything but a wire basket for letters—empty.

"Called out of the city suddenly" was the message he had sent, to be gone indefinitely. To Harriet Crosby, efficient, plain and homely, had descended the task of carrying on his correspondence.

Nancy would be through with her shorthand course in a few weeks now. She would leave this office, seek a job elsewhere—but goodness! she was a Deane, her grandmother had said, "we can go to Europe, we can take this child with us."

Well, she'd just go on. She must have time to think it all out.

Ginger knew everything now. In her excitement Nancy had rushed to her ever untidy room and poured out her story. She had felt a sudden need for Ginger's help, her advice. She hadn't given the bewildered girl a chance to say a word, just poured out her story until she was through. Then she had thrown herself on the bed, tired out, and Ginger had come over, knelt down, and said:

"My Gawd, I knew there was something about you. I knew you wasn't ordinary."

Mud and Darry, they knew, too—

"I told them who I was," Nancy had written. "I told them who I was, but I am yours, only yours, forever and ever. I'll never leave you. I'll love you always.

"Miss O'Day!"

Harriet Crosby's almost hard, practical voice made Nancy jump.

"Will you ever come out of it. You've been staring into space for the last 10 minutes. You'll never get all that filing done."

The clickity, clickity click of Harriet's typewriter was furiously fast now. The lips that were so colorless, that she had once tried to carmine, so unsuccessfully, futilely trying to be more attractive before Howard Wescott, were tightly closed now. They plainly indicated that she had no time or patience for day dreaming in a business office.

The telephone rang and she answered it.

"Miss O'Day?"

There was a flash of fire in her pale eyes.

"This call is for you. I wish you would tell your friends not to call during office hours."

Her words crackled, snapped. She flounced in her chair.

Nancy walked over to the telephone, slowly. There was a time a few weeks ago when words like these from Harriet would have hurt her. She didn't care now. In the last few weeks her emotions had run the gamut. Her anger was all gone. Harriet's irritability didn't matter. One could feel sorry for Harriet. She was a priceless secretary, but she had so little beside the satisfaction of work efficiently done. She was without charm.

Ginger was at the other end of the line.

"Come over tonight, Nancy," she said, "it's time we all got together again, you and Vic and Jerry and I. We'll have a party, eh, kiddo?"

"Yes, all right Ginger, all right—"

Nancy found herself saying yes to Ginger's invitation, she didn't know why unless it was that she didn't want to offer any excuses over the telephone, to prolong the conversation with Harriet listening.

Yes, she'd go to Ginger's. She felt Ginger was sturdy and confident, hard, glittering, cigaret smoking, worldly, gold-digging Ginger—with her heart of gold when you found it.

Back in Ginger's room again. Back in The Carmondy, back, back, back—

Ginger was sitting in front of her littered dresser, curling her hair and chattering, on and on, slangy, ungrammatical, full of a wisdom born of fighting with the world and the people in it. She was talking about Ziegelbaum now.

"Say, kiddo, Goldie Locks," she was saying. "Zieggie is everlastingly askin' for you. He wants you to come in and see him. He says you can have a job for Ziegelbaum's Inc., any old time you want it. Say, I thought to myself, that kid don't need no modelin' jobs nor any kind of jobs any more. Not when she's who she is, only the world don't know it yet.

"But say, that ain't so bad for a kid like you that came here green and innocent is it? Say, it seems like yesterday I brought you here.

On and on, words tumbling on words that Nancy was hearing only vaguely.

"Yes, she remembered well. It was so long, and so short a time ago that she had first climbed the dim old stairs of The Carmondy and had her first introduction to the place Ginger called home.

"Ziegenbaum thinks you're IT," Ginger repeated, and immediately said "darn" when she burned her fingers with the hot iron.

"Yes, sir, he says you're the best model he ever had. He says you just naturally got "it," and you don't know it. That's what he said, kid. He says there's only one girl in ten thousand that really has got "it" and isn't aware of it.

"You know what it is. Guess its sex appeal and a way of wearin' clothes and the thing called charm—all those things rolled up in one.

"Say, Zieggie's crazy about you. And say, I ain't jealous neither. Couldn't be jealous of a sweet kid like you. I've often told you that."

Ginger conquered the last stray end of hair with the hot curling iron and swung around to hear what Nancy had to say to that.

The girl who didn't know she has "it" had her face buried in the pillow of Ginger's bed.

"Hey!" Ginger exclaimed, "what's the matter? You look funny. Are you sick? Just a minute 'till I get you a drink of water."

She hurried out of the room, and while she was gone Nancy heard the voices of Vic and Jerry. Up to the first floor; the voices were louder now. They were on the second flight. They were stopping, starting, telling stories on the way up leaning against the bannisters to break into loud howls of laughter.

Nancy stood up and gave a hurried pat to her hair. She straightened her dress, walked over to the mirror to dash Ginger's powder puff over her face before the two of them had reached the top floor. They would give a loud knock and then walk right in, as they always did. She stood with her back to the dresser now, her hands behind her, holding tight.

She was sitting on the bed again. Vic and Jerry were smoking cigarets. The air was blue with smoke, it hung in layers. Jerry was saying—"what's the matter kid, you're looking kind of pale. Hey, Ginger, get some glasses and steal some ice and ginger ale from the old lady's ice box. I got something that will put the color back in the kid's face.

He started coming toward her. If only he wouldn't talk. If they all would be still.

Nancy was engulfed with homesickness. It came on her in waves as she sat listening to the ceaseless, pointless chatter.

She wanted to go home to Washington, and Washington made her think of John Blair.

She wanted to go to him, too. She wanted to tell him everything. To tell him she knew she loved him. Before she hadn't known, but now she was never surer of anything in her life.

"CHILLY" DOYLE

Once more "Chilly" Doyle, sports writer for the Sun-Telegraph, has climbed aboard his train bound for Sunny California with the Pittsburgh Pirates.

For fifteen years "Chilly" has traveled with the Pittsburgh Ball Club. He will be on the job at Paso Robles, California, where the Pirates do their spring training for the coming National League race.

If you are interested in baseball you will enjoy "Chilly's" reports of the life in the training camp and the progress of the team. You will like his dramatic stories of the games themselves. His "Chilly Sauce" is that spicy, intimate chatter about the notables of baseball. Through his writings you will be able to see the events, the color, the people, the drama of the national pastime.

"Danny" Benjamin, crack sports photographer, will tell you the story of camp life in pictures. "Danny" traveled with the Pirates as the Sun-Telegraph staff photographer and he will snap many a thrilling moment in baseball for the enjoyment of Pittsburgh fans.

Soon the stories and paragraphs and pictures will be coming in. Naturally, they will appear only in the Sun-Telegraph. Watch for them; they will make you long for spring and the opening game.

SPORT COMMENT by JAMES J. LONG

Yanks Will Play Here. Coming for Exhibition. Wright to Bat Fourth.

Robbie Likes His Deal. Ring Killer's Handicap. Grid Tribute to Pitt.

BABE RUTH AT FORBES FIELD MAY 3.

EVEN though the Pirates or Yankees, or both, should fail to see their pennant hopes realized this year, and thus keep the world series from being staged here and in New York next fall, Pittsburgh baseball fans will not be deprived of another chance to see the mighty Babe Ruth in action, along with his slugging mate, Lou Gehrig, and the other star members of the team that has come to be rated by many authorities as the greatest of all time.

Babe Ruth.

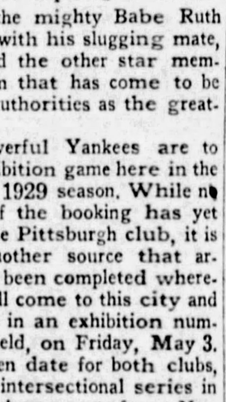
For the powerful Yankees are to appear in an exhibition game here in the early part of the 1929 season. While no announcement of the booking has yet been made by the Pittsburgh club, it is learned from another source that arrangements have been completed whereby the Yanks will come to this city and meet the Pirates in an exhibition number at Forbes Field, on Friday, May 3. It will be an open date for both clubs, immediately preceding the year's first intersectional series in the two big leagues. The Hugmen will be en route from New York to Chicago to begin their initial Western trip, on May 4, and the Pirates will have an off day preparatory to hopping off for Boston to start their first Eastern tour on the same date.

THE appearance of the team that has smashed all major league records by winning six pennants in the last eight years, and capturing two successive world series in four straight contests, is certain to prove a strong drawing card.

The New Yorkers attracted 25,000 fans when they played their first exhibition game here September 8, 1920, and another large gathering on the occasion of a second visit on July 5, 1923. Their only other local appearances were made in world series games on October 5 and 6, 1927.

RUTH made home runs over the right-field fence off George Boehler and Jimmy Zinn in the first two exhibitions played by the Yanks in this city. In both instances the ball was grooved for him in the ninth inning, and on the first occasion George Whitted, playing third base deliberately allowed a pop foul fly to drop without trying to catch it in order to give the Babe another chance to thrill the crowd with the long drive it had been hoping all afternoon to see.

Ruth's homers stood as the longest wallops ever made here, and the first over the right-field fence, until Bill Terry, of the Giants, crashed one of Lee Meadows' pitches over the same wall in deep left center in a championship game on June 13, 1925.



Glenn Wright.

THE management of the Brooklyn club is so confident that Glenn Wright, former Pirate shortstop, is going to have a big year, and has so much faith in his slugging ability, that it has already decided to put him in the clean-up position in the batting order. Word comes from Robin headquarters that Wright will bat fourth as he is rated a more dependable hitter than Babe Herman. The only other Dodger qualified for the place is Del Bissonette, and for some reason he does not like to bat in fourth position, preferring the fifth notch, which he held through most of 1918.

WILBERT ROBINSON, manager of the Dodgers, continues to express himself as being just as pleased as Donie Bush with the exchange in which Pittsburgh gave Wright for Pitcher Jess Petty and Infielder Harry Riconda. He figures that he will have the better of the swap in the long run because he believes that Wright will last seven or eight seasons more as a major league shortstop.

In discussing the trade he made with the Pirate skipper, Robinson says he felt he could afford to let Petty go because he still has a capable left-hand pitcher in Bill Clark. "I think that Clark will be a better pitcher than Petty this year," Robbie declares Clark has something right now that Petty never had—a really good curve ball."

AFTER being scattered to the four winds, most of the famous old Celtics, the greatest team in basketball history, appear to be getting together again, now that the Rochester (N. Y.) Centrals have sold Johnny Beckman to the Cleveland Rosenblums. For in Cleveland Beckman will rejoin three of his former Celtic teammates in Dutch Dehnert, Pete Barry and Chick Lopchick.

With four members of that noted team on their roster, the Pitt and Grove City, and Carnegie Tech and Wash-Jeff, as they clash tonight in their respective games in the Stadium pavilion and the Tech gym, can put on all the Garrison finishes in the book, play all the overtime and slam-bang basketball imaginable, and still be leagues behind the finish that Bethany College staged on the Bluff last night to wrest a triumph from Duquesne.

Bethany today leads both in the Conference and in the district. The Green Bisons have won seven and lost one in league competition, and are almost certain to go on through to the title. In the district, they are a full game out in front, with nine victories and one defeat.

A 37-35 victory over Duquesne last night put the Bisons where they are today. Imagine, if you can, a team trailing by five big points with exactly one minute and 50 seconds remaining of play. Imagine a team that had been playing sloppy basketball all night, that looked 15 points inferior to its opponent, suddenly pull itself together, and with as sensational a finish as has ever been staged in Pittsburgh, score seven points to win the ball game.

HOW IT HAPPENED

Here is exactly how it all happened. Getting the ball on the tip-off, Capt. Baker shot it into the foul line to Telfair, who passed out to the corner to Markley. The latter sunk it. Again the ball was tossed up, and this time, the Dukes obtained possession of it and went into their freak zone. A pass was fumbled under the basket, and ball given to Bethany out of bounds and Ronalds, a substitute guard jumped it in in a scrimmage under the hoop.

There was just about time for one more play. Capt. Baker, who has pulled more than one game out of the fire for his team this year, again grabbed the ball on the tip from Telfair, dribbled past Stephens and cut under the basket, sending the ball through on a neat push shot. He was fouled as he shot, and made one of his two tries good. There you have the tale of the seven points and the ball game.

Until that last minute and 50 seconds, the Bethany lads were very much on the short end. At times the Dukes outclassed them from A to Z, and looked to be certain winners. At that, there wasn't a soul in the crowded gym, aside from the Bisons themselves, who would have given two sneezes for the chances of the West Virginians as that last two minutes began to tick away.

DUKES TAKE LEAD

At the half, Duquesne held an 18 to 10 lead. At one time during the first period, the Dukes were out in front by 16 to 5. In the second half, they re-established a seemingly safe lead after the Bisons, by an admirable rally, which should have served as a forwarning of what was to come later, pulled up to within four points of the locals.

Missing open shots under the hoop, mussing up passes and allowing the dead-eye-dick Bison markamen to get too often cost Duquesne the ball game, all that and the fact that the Bisons fought right through until the game was "in."

Telfair and Mel Rush, with five field goals apiece and one foul tied for the high scoring honors. Capt. Rosenberg of the Dukes sunk two field goals and five out of six fouls to tie for his team's high score with young Ben Lubic.

Bethany is all but crowned as 1929 Conference champ now. The team has two more games to play, both at home. Waynesburg appears to be certain victims, and Geneva, the remaining foe, will have a long evening. The lineup:

Bethany—37.		Duquesne—35.
M. Rush	F	Lubic
Baker (C.)	F	Benedict
Telfair	C	Vernon
Damschroder	G	Rosenberg (C.)
Markley	G	Stephens

Score by periods:

Bethany	10	27—37
Duquesne	18	17—35

Substitutions—Bethany, Ronalds. Duquesne, none.

Field goals—Bethany, M. Rush 5, Baker, Telfair 5, Damschroder 2, Markley 2, Ronalds 2. Duquesne, Benedict 3, Lubic 3, Vernon 2, Rosenberg 2, Stephens 2.

Fouls—Bethany, M. Rush, 1 out of 2; Baker, 1 out of 2. Duquesne, Lubic, 1 out of 2; Rosenberg, 1 out of 2.

BOSTON, Feb. 20.—(AP.)—The Bruins set back the Pittsburgh Pirates, 1 to 0, here last night in a National Hockey League contest, enlivened by erratic play.

The Bruins scored in the second period when Weiland and Shore rushed the former carrying the rubber. As the little center tried the shot, Milks hooked him under the elbow and the referee's whistle sounded. Weiland immediately dropped the puck and Shore hooked it. He tore around the Pirates and pushed it through Goalie Miller.

GOES AFTER FAN

In the ensuing confusion, Milks was penalized for holding. His teammates protested against the score, becoming so excited that they forgot about Milks.

When play was resumed, the Pirates had five men on the ice and the timekeeper sounded the gong. Both teams rushed from the ice and had to be ordered back. While returning one of the Pirates took offense at a spectator, and police prevented him from climbing into the stands. The lineup:

Locals Advance In Miami Play

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 20.—The second round of match play in the Miami amateur championship golf tournament is being contested today over the Miami Country Club courses. Among those participating are John F. Donaldson and W. J. Kappel, of Pittsburgh, who are playing their matches in the seventh flight.

NEWTON, NEW RING PHENOM, TO BOX HERE

By HARRY KECK,
Sports Editor.

Ray Newton, the new fistic sensation of the Tri-State district, will make his Pittsburgh debut in a bout in the Moose Temple ring under the auspices of Francis Flynn on the night of Friday, March 15.

Newton is the youngster who knocked out Battling Gizzy, of Donora, in the fifth round at Washington, Pa., last Monday night, and recently stopped Terry Lingo, of the North Side, and had the veteran Eddie (Kid) Wagner on the floor three times in a bout in Ohio.

Flynn saw Newton flatten Gizzy after being given a hard fight up to the time he nailed the Battler with his sleep-inducing right on the chin, and was impressed by the workmanlike manner in which he finished the job. He thinks Newton will be a great card with the fans here and lost no time signing him for his Pittsburgh debut. He offered Gizzy, who recently walloped U. S. Carpentier in the Moose ring, a return bout with Newton and a chance to redeem himself, and Banty Reihner, manager of Gizzy, accepted, but later said that he wouldn't want the rematch for a couple of months.

Flynn therefore will round up another opponent for the new Ohio star, who, in the meantime, is matched to box Chuck Feldman for the lightweight championship of the Toledo district at Toledo on the night of March 4.

WINDSOR VS. FETZER

Promoter Flynn yesterday closed with Johnny Windsor, of Herron Hill, through the latter's manager, James (Red) Mason, to box Hugh Fetzer, of the North Side, in the semi-final to the Rudy Ceder-Cuddy DeMarco show at the Moose Temple Friday night, and for a return match between Georgie Tomosky, of Wilmerding, and Sammy Paris, of the Hill, for his opening bout. He had Johnny Smackey, of Canonsburg, booked as one of the principals in the second bout, but Smackey is incapacitated and cannot box at this time.

For Friday night of next week, Flynn has rematched Jackie Rodgers, of the North Side, and Johnny Dunn, of New Kensington, in the windup. Dunn defeated Rodgers in the main event last Friday night, but the decision was so widely criticised that an insistent demand has come from the fans and boxers themselves for a return battle.

Dan Billick, Swissvale featherweight, who boxed a six-round draw with Oscar Goodman in New York last Monday night, is to go to the post again in Jersey City tomorrow night and may appear on a card in Cleveland next Tuesday night.

McKEESPORT PRELIMS

Jimmy Maresini, of Aliquippa, and Bobby Keede, of the East End, middleweights, have been matched to box the first bout on Jim McGirr's bill at McKeesport tomorrow night. Buck McTiernan and Mickey Solmen will be in the semi-final and Willie Davies and Howard Mayberry in the windup. George Kerston, of McKeesport, will box a good welterweight opponent in the second bout.

Frankie Stetson and Ed Gleason, California lightweight rivals, box at San Francisco tonight.

BROWN ATTACKS SUNDAY LAW IN PHILLY

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 20.—(INS.)—The perennial fight to amend the so-called Pennsylvania "blue laws" opened here with a broadcast from Francis Shunk Brown, former state attorney general, at the testimonial dinner given Frank Wiener, chairman of the State Athletic Commission, at the Penn A. C.

Sunday baseball and motion picture shows were advocated by Brown as healthful recreation. "We here in Pennsylvania will be better off with the baseball parks and theaters open on Sunday," Brown said. "A man or woman who works six days a week, unable to enjoy proper recreation, should be permitted to have the seventh day to himself or herself. Open up the ball parks and theaters."

The character of the seventh day, however, should not be forgotten, Brown advised. "An address by a public-minded citizen before an audience at a ball park or theater on Sunday would reach many who are not church attendants and would have a moral lesson for all," he added.

Havey J. Boyle, Pittsburgh, and Harry T. Farrell, Wilkes-Barre, the other members of the commission, were among the 500 friends and notables from various sections of the state who paid honor to Wiener. John L. Hernon, Pittsburgh boxing promoter, was among the guests.

Mickey Cochrane Unsigned as A.'s Leave for Camp

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 20.—(AP.)—Mickey Cochrane, first string catcher for the Philadelphia Athletics, was a prominent absentee when the first flight of Mackmen headed for the Florida training camp last night. Cochrane, recipient of the "most valuable player" award last year, has announced himself as a holdout. His contract, carrying an increase in salary remains unsigned, the catcher being of the opinion that he is worth $3,000 more to the Athletics than set forth in the printed slip.

PIE TRAYNOR — JIM STRONER

Two Pirates who will keep the spotlight on the left side of the infield, Pie Traynor and Jim Stroner, met for the first time as the Buc advance guard reached Chicago on its way to the Paso Robles (Cal.) training camp. Traynor, one of the game's greatest third base stars for many years, is to be shifted to shortstop this season, and his duties at the hot corner are to be taken up by Stroner, youthful slugger obtained from Wichita in the Western League. The Traynor-Stroner "experiment" looms as the most interesting feature of the Bucs' early season play.

MEADOWS, ENS JOIN PIRATE PARTY

By CHARLES J. DOYLE,
Staff Correspondent.

HUTCHINSON, Kan., Feb. 20.—Their journey about half complete, Donie Bush and his pitchers and catchers were in high spirits as they rolled through Southwestern Kansas this morning, en route to the Paso Robles training camp.

Hutchinson was reached at the breakfast hour, after the Rock Island train had made a fast run from Kansas City, which town was left at midnight. The athletes, however, had no set plan for their morning repast, the present jaunt not allowing for stop-over meals. On this trip the excursionists take their food on the train, it being unnecessary to rise early.

PARTY ENLARGED

The traveling Buccos expect to be in four different states in quick succession today. Shortly after noon the train will cross the Kansas line into the narrow strip of Oklahoma that protrudes between Kansas and the panhandle section of Texas. The visit to Oklahoma will be brief, the flier being slated to enter Texas a short time before it reaches the New Mexico border. At Tucumcari, the train will enter the tracks of the Southern Pacific and will be in charge of that organization until Paso Robles is reached.

When the vanguard reached Kansas City last night, it was increased by four athletes. Waiting at the big station in the mid-Western city were Coach Jewel Ens, Lee Meadows, Homer Blankenship and Claude Linton. Heinie Meine, one of the Buccaneer holdouts, did not accompany the club on account of salary troubles. Meine was purchased from the Kansas City team, but so far has failed to sign.

No further additions will be made to the squad over the remainder of the journey, but when Bush's party arrives at the training camp, it will be greeted by Remy Kremer, Fred Fussell, Carmen Hill, Ralph Erickson, Earl Sheely, Chic Frazer and Joe Devine.

Hill already is working out with the assistance of Sheely, whose home is near the Almond City. The Corry giant left for camp ahead of the others in order to get the benefits of a few extra days of training.

GRIMES IN GREAT SHAPE

Through most of yesterday the train traveled through snow-swept fields, but as Kansas City was neared, the winter touch was diminishing. The journey has been pleasant to all, cards being the principal subject of diversion. A couple of bridge games helped to while away the time pleasantly. Those not engaged in cards recount thrilling tales of the hunting season in various parts of the country.

Every member of the big squad is eager to swing into action and not one appears too far off form. Burleigh Grimes, for example, is 10 pounds lighter than he was when he made the trip one year ago, the star spit-baller being right at his pitching weight without taking part in any bouts.

Mrs. Jess Petty is the only woman member in the party making up the advance guard.

Chillysauce

The big squad of Buccaneer pitchers stand out as a strapping array. Ervin Brame and Homer Blankenship are the tallest members of the sharp-shooting corps, each being far over 6 feet in height, but others are perhaps more powerful than these tall boys.

Leon Chagnon, recruit from the New England, is of French extraction, almost 6 feet tall and weighing about 170. Leon is a fine looking boy. His speech is almost identical to that of Pie Traynor, which is quite natural in that his home is within 40 miles of Boston.

PLAYERS SUSPENDED

WILKES-BARRE, Pa., Feb. 20.—(AP.)—Three cagers of Wyoming Seminary's team have been suspended for the remainder of the season for violating training regulations. They are Chester Bailey and William Rees, both of Youngstown, and Chiz Walker, of this city, guard and captain.

COUNTY CHAMPS OUT TO CLINCH LOOP TITLE

By JULIUS LEVIN.

The Duquesne Lafayettes, having proved beyond all doubt that they rank as one of the greatest professional teams ever organized in this section, will be out to capture the Allegheny County League championship for the third year in a row tonight when they meet Reliance Life at Columbus Temple in the only County League game on the program.

The Scarlet Hurricane, as a result of its splendid showing in local basketball circles, will go down in Western Pennsylvania floor circles as one of the smoothest working aggregations ever to roam a pine court in this vicinity. Fans who have seen the Duquesne champions in action this season are firm in their contention that the Lafayettes stand in a class by themselves as a basketball machine.

BEATEN TWICE

The Lafayettes swept through the first round of the County League race with only one defeat to mar their record, the champs losing to the Goldensons at the South Side Market House. In the second round to date only one team, the Enoch Rauhs, has succeeded in scoring a victory over them. There is nothing in the County League race this season that compares with the well-geared Lafayette machine and it is entitled to all the spoils that go with a championship team.

For three successive years County League teams have taken extra pains in an effort to find means by which they could check the drive of the Lafayettes and every season finds the champs an improved team. In the three years they have been members of the County League the Lafayettes have yet to lose two games in a single round of play, a record that speaks for itself.

MINNICK BIG FACTOR

Ed Minnick, veteran coach of the Duquesne team, is deserving of the major portion of credit for the excellent showing of his champions in local floor competition. Minnick has made numerous changes in his lineup during the course of the last three years, yet his team appears to grow stronger with each game. Many fans were under the impression that the Lafayettes would lose a lot of their class when Ganey Benedict enrolled at Duquesne University, but his absence during the last two seasons does not seem to affect the smooth-working attack of the Scarlet Hurricane.

Individually and collectively the present Lafayette team composed of Minnick and Drotar at forwards; George Ramsay at center and Gubby and A. Benedict at the guards, stands head and heels over any of its rivals. Every man is a versatile star, being capable of playing several positions. As a result Coach Minnick does not find it necessary to make numerous changes in his starting lineup.

With five men employing a swift, passing attack and with each one an excellent shot from all angles of the floor, fans are at a loss to know how the Goldensons and Rauhs succeeded in gaining decisions over the champs. Any team winning from the Lafayettes has accomplished a rare achievement. Their defeats during the last few years come few and far between.

DRIBBLES

Johnny Beckman, former star of the New York Celtics, will make his first appearance in several years in Pittsburgh when the Cleveland Rosies meet the Original Morry Five on March 2. The last time Beckman was here he appeared in the Celtics' lineup against the Coffey Club at Motor Square Garden. Cleveland recently purchased Beckman from the Rochester Club of the American League.

The Mangans will play their second P. & O. League game in two successive nights at the Market House tonight when they meet the Jeannette Felders. The Mangans are holding a slight lead in the second round of the schedule and will be out to improve their position.

The Y. M. H. A. and Kingsley House teams, which finished in a tie for first place in the initial round of play in the Greater Pittsburgh Institutional League, clash at the One Hundred and Seventy-sixth Field Artillery armory tonight to decide the winner.

One game is scheduled tonight in the Greater Pittsburgh Institutional League, Heinz House playing at East Liberty Y. M. C. A.

The Ackerman-Conley game scheduled in the Homestead District League tonight has been called off.

GENEVA BEATEN BY ALLEGHENY

BEAVER FALLS, Pa., Feb. 20.—A small, aggressive basketball team from Allegheny, invaded Geneva here last night and completely outplayed the Covenanter five, defeating the Loeffler boys by the score of 21 to 23.

Allegheny took an early lead, but after one-fourth of the game was history the Geneva boys overtook the Methodists and at half time led by a 13-10 count. It was Geneva's foul shooting in this half that gave them the three-point lead. Play in the second half was very close until six minutes remained when the winners found the net and looped in the necessary points for the victory.

From this point on it was only a matter of time, for the Methodists were never again in danger from then until the final whistle. The lineup:

SPORT COMMENT

By JAMES J. LONG

Rosenblums will begin to look like the Celtics themselves. But Beckman is not likely to be in action as regularly as the other three. His back was injured in the first of the two games that Rochester played with Chicago a month ago, and that, coupled with an injury to his right leg, has kept him on the bench the greater part of the time since.

Benny Leonard.

DOES it pay to build up a reputation as a "killer" in the boxing game? It may increase the drawing powers of a fighter for a time, as there is no question that the battler with the punch, and the consequent prospect of a knockout, is the strongest lure that brings dollars into the box office but trying to keep up such a reputation is a tough job. Benny Leonard always argued against it when he was lightweight champion. Asked by Perry Lewis one night after a bout in Philadelphia, why he had allowed a pushover to stay the limit, Leonard replied: "Plenty of reasons. In the first place, there is always the danger of breaking your hands. Now this fellow had a square, rugged chin. Had I set myself and socked him with everything I had I probably would have flattened him, but I probably would have broken a hand.

"IN THE second place, what was there in it for me to knock out that poor kid? Nothing. And it would have hurt him, cut down his earning power. As it was, the fans got a good run for their money, I lost no prestige, and the boy can get plenty of work on the strength of the fact that he went the limit with the champion.

Most important of all, however, is the fact that I don't care to build up a reputation as a knockerout. If I went along bumping second and third-raters for the count of 10 the fans would always expect me to stop them.

"THAT would be on my mind every time I entered the ring, and it isn't hard to see that it would handicap me to no slight extent. I'd be forced to concentrate on scoring knockouts instead of winning safely.

"And if I did not succeed in keeping up the string of knockouts the penalty would be loss of prestige and drawing power. 'Leonard is going back,' they would say every time I failed to stop my man."

Glenn Thistlethwaite.

THAT Glenn Thistlethwaite, head football coach at the University of Wisconsin, was paying a high tribute to the Warner and Sutherland gridiron systems when he made a special effort while here Monday to get Dr. Sutherland's aid in landing Mike Getto or some other Pitt product as a line coach for the Badgers, is all the more apparent when it is known many coaches who represent other systems of football in various parts of the country are candidates for the job. Thistlethwaite appears bent on passing them all up if he can get a man who is schooled in the Warner-Sutherland game.

TO SHOW how eagerly the Wisconsin post is being sought it need only be stated that among the candidates are two former Notre Dame stars who already have coaching positions. One of them is Adam Walsh, Walter Camp's third-team choice for all-America center in 1924, and the other is Bud Boeringer, picked by many as all-America center in 1926.

Walsh has been head coach at Santa Clara for four years, and Boeringer has been line coach at Detroit for the last two seasons. Incidentally, it is another former Notre Dame player, Tom Lieb, whom Thistlethwaite is trying to replace as line coach at Wisconsin.

LOU MAGNOLIA TO REFEREE BIG FIGHT

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Feb. 20.—(AP.)—The battle of the arbiters ended last night when Lou Magnolia, popular New York official, was named to referee the battle between Jack Sharkey and Young Stribling at Flamingo Park here a week from today.

Announcement of the decision to switch from Johnny Brassil, Boston referee, who was named for the post by Massachusetts State Athletic Commission in reputed accordance with the contracts of the battlers, was made by Jack Dempsey, promoter of the fray, after a heated conference with the principals.

Decision to change the third man in the ring followed an earlier statement of Dempsey that Brassil and no other would handle the fight.

Three officials for the bout, all timekeepers, have been chosen. They are Remy Derr, of New Orleans; H. Stribling, an uncle of the boxer, and James Downing, of Tampa.

MEADOWS, ENS JOIN BUCS

many of its branches. He was a light heavyweight boxing champion of the Navy when a boy and on the recent excursion of American athletes to Antwerp he was one of those in charge of the track and field men.

Rolly Hemsley is almost 20 pounds heavier than he was at this time last year. Rolly went to camp underweight and had to build up. The fact that he could do but little with the bat may have been a reaction of his lack of poundage. In any event the Ohio coal miner is a real husky this year, and will have a fine chance of showing a lot of class as a big league catcher.

Steve Swetonic is another athlete who is happy over additional poundage. Steve is a bit too light as a general thing, but he strove to put on six or eight extra pounds and was successful in increasing his weight to this extent. The native son is in splendid shape to begin the preparatory season.

The strongest man in the squad, is Claude Linton, powerful recruit catcher who jumped aboard at Kansas City. The well-built collegian also was a boxer and a football player in his college days. He is more than 6 feet in height and can carry about 200 pounds without showing any surplus poundage. Linton is the only left-hand batter among the catchers. He and John O'Connell will fight it out for the third-string catching job.

During the stop at Kansas City some of the Pirates called on Zach Wheat and Cotton Tierney, who operate bowling alleys in the big town.

SLIPPERY ROCK WINS

SWARTHMORE, Pa., Feb. 20.—The Swarthmore girls met their first defeat in four seasons yesterday when the Slippery Rock State Teachers won, 46 to 25. The Garnet girls, claimants to the eastern intercollegiate title, were beaten by a sextet of tall amazons from the West whose play would have done justice to any men's team.

Labor Sports Union Announces Program

Plans for baseball, gymnastic and track and field competitions were announced as the Pittsburgh Sub-Division of the Labor Sports Union of America was organized at a convention at Walton Hall, Stanwix street.

The baseball tournament is to head the program. Teams from many cities in Pennsylvania are to be entered, and the league champion will be decided through the medium of an elimination series. An open track and field meet is to be held here in June, and Pennsylvania and Ohio athletes will be opposed in a meet at Conneaut, O., on May 4 and 5. Wrestling and boxing also will be on the Conneaut program.

The gymnastic meet is to be held in Cleveland on March 16.

BATTLE LINES DRAWN IN RAIL MERGERS

By GEORGE H. SNYDER.

NEW battle lines are being drawn in the struggle for supremacy in railroad consolidations. The Van Sweringen interests of Cleveland have prepared the most comprehensive merger plan, which includes several railroad properties not now under their control.

The Baltimore and Ohio is seeking a consolidation which will fit into the Van Sweringen arrangements while the Pennsylvania and New York Central lines will attempt to convince the Interstate Commerce Commission of the justice of an entirely different grouping of lines.

SEVERAL of the short line railroads are fighting lone hands which may result in their being grouped into entirely new systems or owned jointly by the larger companies.

The Pittsburgh and West Virginia, under control of the Taplin group, is attempting to make itself a link in a new line from the lakes to the seaboard after the completion of the Connellsville extension. On the other hand the Van Sweringens and the Baltimore and Ohio are opposing this attempt and trying to make the Pittsburgh and West Virginia a jointly owned terminal link through this district.

THE Montour Railroad, now owned by the Pittsburgh Coal Company, may also be included in some of the proposed consolidations, since this line connects with all of the major trunk lines here.

An outstanding difficulty in the way of the new Taplin line is the fact that the Western Maryland is controlled by the Baltimore and Ohio, while the control of the Wheeling and Lake Erie is divided between the Van Sweringens, the Baltimore and Ohio and the New York Central. The Pittsburgh and West Virginia has petitioned the Interstate Commerce Commission to order the other carriers to divest themselves of these holdings so that it can acquire control. Both of the disputed roads are indispensible parts of the proposed Pittsburgh and West Virginia system.

THE solution of the problem may be a long way off. The Interstate Commerce Commission has the almost superhuman task of deciding the justice of all of the conflicting plans and of weighing each of the counter claims.

In the past the Commission has frankly declared itself unable to make any decision on the matter. The problem is not simplified by the fact that a large share of the proposals are made not so much with the hope that they will be allowed but in the belief that they will pave the way for a good compromise. Some of the smaller lines are undoubtedly trading on their nuisance value in the hope of being taken into larger systems on the best possible terms.

EVEN after the general railroad map has been satisfactorily divided between the four powers, the task will have been barely started. The plans now being offered do not specify the terms under which the consolidations are to take place, but merely attempt to clarify the question of what lines should be tied together.

It will still be necessary for the roads to make financial arrangements which, in addition to meeting the approval of stockholders, must also satisfy the Commission.

In the past one difficulty with such efforts has been that so much time often elapses between the filing of a petition and action by the Commission that the proposals were no longer workable. It probably will be necessary for the Commission to speed up its work to keep pace with changing stock market conditions.

NEW YORK BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, Feb. 20.—(AP.)—Trading in the early bond market today continued to fall off, with the volume of sales around yesterday's record low levels for the year. Traders became more wary of the credit situation as the Federal Reserve Board in Washington announced approval of the New York increase in bankers' acceptance buying rates for all Federal Reserve banks. Money was slightly easier.

Many of the bond houses are beginning to abandon their optimistic hopes of last year for a revival of interest in the market the first part of 1929, because of the unsatisfactory nature of the credit situation. Only an early revision downward in time money rates, it is claimed, will bring in buying on a scale to bolster the market.

Rails displayed a firm tone with the filing of applications by the Baltimore and Ohio and Van Sweringen interests for consolidation of eastern roads. Erie refunding 5s improved.

Utilities sold down fractionally, as pressure was exerted against International Telephone convertible 4½s and Utilities Power and Light 5½s. The industrial list was quiet and price changes in the early dealings were insignificant.

Trading was exceptionally dull in the foreign list, which displayed an irregular tone.

NEW YORK, Feb. 20.—(AP.)—Transactions in the most active bonds on the New York Stock Exchange today were as follows, 000 omited in sales column (United States bonds in dollars and thirty-seconds of dollars):

Underwriting in Fire Insurance

WHO shall, or shall not, be insured; what property shall, or shall not, be covered; and what amount of insurance shall be accepted, if any? These are problems which daily face the underwriter.

Fire insurance companies do not insure property, but do insure and safeguard the interest of persons or corporations in property.

The property owner's character, financial ability to possess and maintain the property, the usefulness of the property to its owner, his fire record, if any, and other pertinent particulars, concern the underwriter.

The type of property to be covered, be it dwelling, mercantile, manufacturing or personal property, as well as construction, occupancy, fire protection, exposure, damageability, amount of insurance carried compared with the value of the property, along with many other conditions, must be studied by the underwriter.

The underwriter is equipped with insurance maps, surveys, engineering data, confidential character and financial reports, fire records and other information upon which to base his judgment of a particular line of insurance.

Underwriters of Stock Fire Insurance Companies are men of broad experience who are carefully trained in the selection of desirable, and in the avoidance of undesirable risks.

The public and the insurance companies are jointly interested in preventing unwarranted or illegitimate loss payments, thereby helping to keep the cost of fire insurance down.

Public Opinion Aroused On Reserve Board, Workers

—By B. C. FORBES—

PUBLIC opinion is functioning unusually actively. This is proved by the number of comments lately received by this column.

Two subjects head the list: Speculation in stocks, especially the action of the Federal Reserve Board, and the treatment of workers by corporations.

PERHAPS it is natural that every person who caught the speculative fever should feel angry at the Reserve Board for attempting to arrest the continuous expansion of borrowing by stock market operators at the expense of other borrowers. Had nobody lifted a finger to stay the stock boom and the mounting absorption of available credit by brokers, what would the final upshot have been? That question is avoided by those who were eager only to have the market continue to go higher until they cashed in their easily-won profits.

The temper of a large section of the public can be deduced from the following:

ONE reader writes:

"In 1920 I lost a fortune of more than $100,000 because the Federal Reserve Board suddenly decided that credit used in commodities had to be curtailed.

"Now hundreds of thousands of people, encouraged to buy stocks, lose their fortunes because the Federal Reserve Board suddenly raises a ruckus about the credit situation and speculation in stocks.

"I hold that the Federal Reserve Board, if it is worth a pinch of salt, should see to it that such situations do not arise in the first place. In the second, if they do arise, they should have brains enough to bring about a correction gradually and without the noise and fluster that accompanies these corrections.

"These two points, it seems to me, are the kernel of the whole subject, and the Federal Reserve Board should be made to repent in sackcloth and ashes for the money they cause innocent people to lose through the unstatesmanlike policy they pursue."

THIS is how a lady finishes a quite vigorous attack:

"I read not long ago that the best cure would be to abolish the Federal Reserve. I quite agree. It has proved a rank failure and the 'authorities' are unpatriotic, un-American and against the best interests, not only of the American business man, but all the rest of the American people interested financially in our stock market."

EXTRACTS from a New Orleans letter:

"I wonder if this country is not a bit off on the wrong angle towards prosperity, and instead of everyone putting their shoulder to the wheel to further industry and commerce, every Tom, Dick and Harry is gambling in the New York stock exchange? It would appear to me that most people are finding it very difficult to make money legitamately, so have resorted to the stock market and in turn are depriving themselves and their families of the necessities of life, such as food, wearing apparel, etc., and the consequences is that the firm who is conducting a legitimate business, whether it be a department store or any field of endeavor which is really an institution of commerce, must suffer.

"Would you please tell me what good is the New York stock exchange?

"To my mind, it is another excuse for a modern Monte Carlo, under disguise. It encourages the women, and particularly the people who work hard for their money, to lose it quickly, and is absolutely the direct opposite of the word thrifty."

THIS comes from the West:

"Congratulations on your article with the 'aged worker problem in industry.' We of the wage-earning class, and I think we are greatly in the majority, don't care a d——, if Wall Street had a new high yesterday. We are interested, however, in an earnest straight-forward presentation of the foregoing subject.

"The writer is but 28, so the prevailing custom of not hiring men over 40 has not as yet hit him. However, in this age of mergers, mass production, chain store merchandising, etc., glasses are not needed in order to see the handwriting on the wall."

FROM Illinois:

"Workers who have given a lifetime of service are being discharged, here and elsewhere, by the very men who became rich and powerful through their labor. Corporations have no soul, and judging by their actions, most of those who are in charge of them are no better.

"Twenty or more foreign countries, many of them debtors of Uncle Sam, pay a pension to their old-aged men and women. I cannot conceive of a single reason why the state or Federal government should not enact laws to provide for those who are unable, through no fault of their own, to provide for themselves."

EVENING SUN-TELEGRAPH MARKETS

New York Curb Market — Financial News and Views

NEW YORK CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, Feb. 20.—(AP.)—Conflicting price movements marked the trading in the Curb market today, as the volume of sales fell off sharply, reflecting reduced buying by accounts whose margins were impaired on other exchanges the past two weeks. Buying was mostly in issues figuring in news reports of consolidations and earnings.

Utilities were the most active group. American Gas and Electric fluctuated over a range of 4 points, while Electric Bond and Share shot up 6 points on reports American Foreign Power, in which it owns stock, is entering the Canadian field. New Electric Bond and Share rose 2 points. United Gas Improvement declined fractionally in the early hours.

Goldman Sachs trading displayed renewed strength, climbing 5 points, as opposition to the merger with Financial Industrial and Securities Corporation was reported withdrawn. The new stock moved up 4 points.

Ford Motor of Canada was the feature of the motor group, mounting 14 points to 647. Checker Cab was strong, with a 2-point gain.

Reports Packard Motor was to erect a factory for construction of airplane Deisel motors had little influence on the aviation stocks. Niles Bement Pond rose 5 points.

Phelps Dodge in the mining group recovered its early loss of 5 points.

NEW YORK, Feb. 20.—(AP.)—Following is the list of transactions on the New York Curb Exchange, giving all stocks and bonds traded (00 omitted in sales column of stock list; 000 omitted in sales column of bond list):

BUGS BAER Says

WHEN A PRESIDENT WALKS BACK

A MISSOURI lady wants to know what Mr. Coolidge and Mr. Hoover will talk about while riding together in that March Fourth Inaugural stampede.

We do not know the subject.

In fact, we think they will ignore it.

"Bugs Baer" Mr. Coolidge is in rather a moodish mood.

For the first time in his career he will realize what it means to be vetoed.

There is no doubt that Mr. Hoover will be happy as he brushes his silk hat from East to West with a tender but dignified hand.

Mr. Coolidge's conversation, if any, will be in the nature of a minority report.

It's Mr. Hoover's parade.

As Ichabod Crane remarked to the Headless Horseman as they scrambled through the detours of Sleepy Hollow:

"You may be along. But remember this is MY ride."

There have been many famous rides in history. Paul Revere won a patriotic steeplechase in which all the other entrants were scratched.

When two presidents ride up Pennsylvania avenue together, one of them is riding on to glory and the other to an ex.

In the nature of events, to one of them the carriage is a chariot, and the other, it is a turnbril.

The incoming president must carefully refrain from smiling. The outbound executive must smile even more carefully.

Whenever there is cheering, both gentlemen must raise their high hats together, rise and bow, then fall back completely exhausted.

We have never taken that ride. But we think it would be a diplomatic stroke if the hat worn by Mr. Hoover is an inch higher than Mr. Coolidge's.

This will establish the question of precedence. And it will hurt no man's feelings. In the excitement, no one will think of measuring the silk hats Kellys.

As to their conversation, it will probably be the mumbles and the jumbles.

GEORGE BUNGLE DO YOU KNOW WHAT TIME IT IS? AFTER MIDNIGHT! AND YOU LEFT THIS HOUSE AT FOUR OCLOCK THIS MORNING. DON'T TELL ME YOU SPENT ALL THIS TIME GOING TO AND FROM THAT SILLY FUR FOR PROFIT RANCH.
I HAD A LITTLE BAD LUCK. MY CAR STUCK IN THE MUD AND I HAD TO HIRE TWO FARMERS AND FOUR HORSES TO PULL ME OUT.
JAKE THE HIRED MAN HAD A BIT OF BAD LUCK TOO. HE FELL IN THE WELL. AND WHILE HE WAS DOWN THERE THE GUINEA-PIGS RAN OUT IN THE NIGHT AIR OR SOMETHING, AND SEEM SORT OF SOGGY. OH WELL THERE'S SUNSHINE AND SHADOW IN EVERY BUSINESS

I'LL BET THE MAN WHO SOLD YOU THAT RANCH ISN'T WORRIED EITHER HE'S SMART. HE DIDN'T SPEND THE DAY FISHING A HIRED MAN OUT OF THE WELL AND WANDERING IN AT MIDNIGHT LOOKING LIKE A WET CAT. OH GEORGE BUNGLE I KNOW... .....GEORGE! GEORGE ARE YOU ASLEEP ALREADY?

ELLA CINDERS — She Hesitates Still

I COULD NEVER MARRY A MAN UNLESS HE LOVED ME —I NEVER GO IN FOR LIGHTER EMOTIONS! YOU KNOW A GIRL MAY BE SHOCKED IF A MAN MAKES LOVE TO HER, BUT SHE'S DISAPPOINTED IF HE DOESN'T!
SINCE MY WEALTH IS NO INDUCEMENT, I CAN'T MAKE YOU BELIEVE THAT I LOVE YOU, THOUGH I'VE TOLD YOU A HUNDRED TIMES!
MAYBE I DO BELIEVE IT, BUT I WANT YOU TO!
TOMORROW I SHALL TAKE YOU TO DINNER, MEANWHILE I HOPE YOU WILL DECIDE IN MY FAVOR!
WELL, A GOOD MEAL ALWAYS WORKS WONDERS WITH MY DISPOSITION!
HE HASN'T CONVINCED ME YET THAT HE'S THE MAN FOR ME, BUT IF HE'D CRUSH ME MOVIE-LIKE IN HIS ARMS, PERHAPS THAT METHOD OF HIGH-PRESSURE WOULD OVERCOME SOME OF MY SALES RESISTANCE!

The only way to definitely settle the question is to give her time to grow another crop and then see how much she can get out of the jury.

Congress Should Adopt at Once the Resolution to Investigate Iniquitous Drug Traffic in America

BOTH houses of Congress should welcome the opportunity to adopt without delay the joint resolution just reported from the Senate Committee on the Judiciary for the investigation by a joint committee of the two houses of the country-wide traffic in narcotic drugs.

This resolution is sponsored in the Senate by Senator Wheeler, of Montana, and in the House by Representative LaGuardia, of New York.

It calls for the appointment of a special committee to consist of two senators and three representatives in Congress.

Prompt adoption of this resolution would enable the Congress to drag into the light of day this nefarious traffic which is now carried on all over this country in violation of the laws of God and man.

No argument is needed to convince the Congress and the country that this hideous hawking of "dope" is a curse to the American people and a challenge to the American government.

Not since 1919 has an inquiry of this sort been conducted by the Federal authorities. In recent years the peddling of dope appears to have grown by leaps and bounds and today constitutes a national menace and a national mortification.

Let the Congress adopt forthwith the Wheeler-LaGuardia resolution and we shall be in a fair way to find out how many cowardly rascals guilty of peddling dope still walk our city streets unwhipped of justice.

Such an inquiry should also show how many new kinds of narcotic drugs enter into this wicked traffic that have not yet been put under the ban of the law.

Already a House committee has heard unchallenged testimony that our drug addicts are actually responsible for crimes the money cost alone of which totals five billion dollars every year.

From our prominent physicians comes the declaration that the medical profession, discouraging the use of cocaine, has found non-habit substitutes to be far better for many cases. Yet 34,794 ounces of cocaine are said to have been sold last year with a show of legality.

According to Charles H. Tuttle, United States district attorney at New York City, both Europe and Asia have dumped narcotic drugs into this country at the rate of between $25,000,000 and $50,000,000 worth through the port of New York alone since last May.

Our government expended last year $1,400,000 in an effort to wipe out the secret sale of narcotic drugs.

How much more should be spent for this purpose and how it should be spent a Congressional investigation of the sort which the Wheeler-LaGuardia resolution authorizes ought to show.

This investigation has been indorsed by leaders on both sides of the aisle in both houses of Congress. It has the support of all those branches of the government charged by law with the responsibility of waging unceasing warfare on this illicit and indefensible and indescribably horrible and harmful traffic.

Here is a probe that the whole American people will support.

Because the household of the nation is menaced by this assault upon the public health and challenged by this brazen defiance of popular will.

It was Abraham Lincoln who said that "with public sentiment nothing can fail." And public sentiment will insure the triumph of the warfare on the dope traffic if only Congress will fire the opening gun by adopting without delay the Wheeler-LaGuardia resolution.

We Begin to Avenge The Death of Borkoski

The coroner's inquest yesterday officially developed the facts on which to hold on the charge of murder the former coal and iron policemen accused of the slaying of John Borkoski. That investigation begins the legal efforts of the authorities to bring about punishment of those directly responsible for the death of this poor man as a result of unspeakable, horrifying brutality, the details of which are a strain upon credulity.

Only those directly responsible go to trial. Those indirectly responsible will try to make amends as best they can. Few of us lack responsibility in some degree. We permitted a most un-American organization to exist through our sanction although we had repeated warnings that in giving property rightful protection we were doing so through a medium that transcended the rights of the people.

We should have known that common rights cannot be ruthlessly ground into the mire without grave danger to our free institutions. We should have known that tyranny which we imposed upon ourselves would tend to crush us, to brutalize us and to destroy some of us. All of us must accept some of the shame for the death of Borkoski, even protestants against the system, because we didn't protest effectively enough.

Yet we have been aroused sufficiently to assure that there never will be a repetition of the Borkoski outrage. A different method will be found for protecting coal properties. No less than seven bills have been introduced in Harrisburg to do away with coal and iron police. Out of them, it is assumed, will emerge an effective measure of protecting property without surrendering to irresponsible brutes the sovereign authority of the state, supposedly to enforce the law, but, in the case of the notorious coal and iron police, to trample upon the rights of the people.

It is an evil that has been crying for correction for years. Heretofore deaf ears have been turned to the pleas. It even has been intimated that those who pointed out the injustice of the system were advocating leaving property unprotected and inviting a reign of lawlessness. As if there ever had been either law or justice in coal camps where cossackism held sway!

Suggestion Offered for Skirt Length Solution

Out of Chicago, aptly enough, comes a suggestion for the solution of the moot problem of the proper length of skirts. Henry Rheinhardt, chairman of the Associated Dress Industries, states that dresses should be lengthened and shortened in accordance with the clock. At noon, they should be knee high, he says, and as the shadows lengthen the frocks should follow suit, so that evening dresses would be as long as in the days of our grandmothers.

Is this a sensible compromise, adaptable to all styles? Women would be given fashionable authority to change their frocks hourly—which many of them do now, without authority—and the advocates both of long and short skirts would have their fling, so to speak.

Test of Time Passed By Boy Scouts of America

The Boy Scouts of America have undergone the hardest test of time. After passing the nineteenth year of organization, they are showing that the enthusiasm with which they entered the field of usefulness and patriotism has increased rather than abated.

There are 800,000 of them—what a mighty force of trained and directed mental and physical energy they constitute! What a power of public good! What a vast source of national defense! They are as numerous as the people of a hundred cities, and they leaven the youthful population of the whole country with practical idealism. May their tribe increase!

Tales That Are Told

SHE was visiting a zoo and gathering as much information about the animals as possible in one short afternoon.

Eventually she came to the bears.

Worst Story I Have Heard Today

By WILL ROGERS

THERE was a woman in New York that didn't want a big building put up next to her house, but the builders went ahead anyhow. This woman brought a lot of lawsuits for damages on account of litter being left in her yard and blasting knocking down her plaster and her guests being annoyed by workmen that ate their lunch too close to her sidewalk and everything like that.

Finally this woman had some of the steel workers arrested for disturbing her with noise and bad language. They come up before a police judge, and the woman said they had been yelling the most terrible swear-words at one another. She pointed to one guy, and she said, "The last straw was this bird, when he got hurt or something. Why, the way that guy talked to the other fellow over there was such that I was sick for the rest of the day."

She wouldn't repeat what the guy had said. So the judge gets the steel worker and asks him just what it was.

"Well," he says, "you see, Tom throws a red-hot rivet, and he pitches it careless-like, and it hits me on the head. Is it any fun to be hit on the head by a red-hot rivet that's been throwed real hard, your honor?"

"What did you say?"

"Well, I was pretty mad, and I did forget myself a little, your honor."

"Just what did you say?"

"I said, 'For pity's sake, Thomas, don't be rude!' But I didn't know there was a lady by, your honor."

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

IF anyone told you you were not free you'd be pretty mad. You'd announce at once that both God and the American Constitution made you as free as air.

Which may be so—

Nevertheless you're not free.

For even if God and the American Constitution worked overtime to give you freedom you'd rapidly acquire shackles—

AND THOSE SHACKLES YOU WOULD FORGE FOR YOURSELF.

Cowardice is one of those shackles.

Laziness is a shackle—

Conceit is a shackle—

Hate, jealousy, envy, greed are shackles—

The wrong kind of love, the wrong kind of ambition are the worst of shackles.

These attitudes and desires which you forge in the secret places of the heart are really tangible chains which bind you and enslave you.

God can't make you free—

The Constitution can't make you free—

You, alone, can free yourself.

YOU'RE AS FREE AS YOUR OWN STATE OF MIND.

If your mind is in a cell of fear, or hate, or desire, or pride, then you're in a cell. And it's a crueler cell than any penitentiary.

If your mind has shaken itself free, then you are really free with the only true freedom there is and nothing that any man can do to you will harm you.

There's a gay little song which everyone was singing some time ago which was built about that truth. It was called "I JUST ROLL ALONG," and the first verse goes something like this—

Goodbye, goodbye, goodbye, Blue!
I miss my joy and sorrow, living as I do—
Goodbye, goodbye, goodbye, Blues,
I haven't got a thing to lose!
Oh, I just roll along, having my ups, having my downs.
Having my ups and downs all day long"—

That's modern jazz music, but it's also the essence of the most ancient philosophy on earth. Every great teacher, including Christ, has taught us that freedom can only come from within ourselves—when we, ourselves, stop fearing and hating and desiring too greatly.

They also advise men to "just roll along, having their ups and downs" without taking life too seriously.

"Maybe it's hot — maybe it's cold, whether it's hot or cold, I don't care," runs the little song.

You have to be pretty wise to understand the findings of the great philosophers, but there's a rule that fits the simplest mind.

Whatever your life, or whatever your nature, you CAN train yourself so that you won't mind much whether it's hot or cold—

You CAN stop shackling your life with unnecessary fears and spites and greedy, bossy loves, if you really want to—

YOU CAN BE FREE!

IT'S UP TO YOU!

Bible Passages

"Word of God

(Isaih 40: 3-8.)

THE voice of him that crieth in the wilderness, Prepare ye the way of the Lord, make straight in the desert a highway for our God.

Every valley shall be exalted, and every mountain and hill shall be made low; and the crooked shall be made straight, and the rough places plain:

And the glory of the Lord shall be revealed, and all flesh shall see it together; for the mouth of the Lord hath spoken it.

The voice said, Cry. And he said, What shall I cry? All flesh is grass, and all the goodliness thereof is as the flower of the field:

The grass withereth, the flower fadeth: because the spirit of the Lord bloweth upon it: surely the people is grass.

The grass withereth, the flower fadeth: but the word of our God shall stand for ever.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

WHEN talking about those you dislike it is easy to bring up something derogatory to their family.

Have all the members of your own family lived as they should?

Isn't there a family skeleton whose bones you would not want to hear rattled?

There are comparatively few families free from one black sheep.

Some sort of stain is somewhere in every family.

You may think that because you are far away from relatives whose reputations are not of the best that your family secrets are safe.

You might be surprised to know how many of those with whom you mingle day by day in your business and in your social affairs in the far city know facts about your relatives or perhaps about yourself that you have hoped might not be found out.

So it is unwise to try to dig up facts of an uncomplimentary nature about anyone.

There is so little difference in the majority of families that there is not much to be gained or presented that could not be matched by many another one.

Unless you and all of your relatives have irreproachable records, you take a big chance when you provoke others to look into your family history.

Information and Win-formation

By Herbert Kaufman

WILLIAM CULLEN KEMP is dead at the age of 78. By all odds, he should have been the most learned soul in the universe. And, logically, the most useful.

Probably no brain, ever before, lodged so many precious secrets of power and wisdom.

Socrates and Anaxagoras strolled through its cells, and argued fundamentals with Pascal and Kant.

Chauvanet, the mathematician, had deposited all his theorems there—and every important experience, percolated through the sands of time, and essenced in ink, had fed his omnivorous appetite for truths.

Mr. Kemp studied at Columbia for sixty years. He wore the longest string of earned degrees on record. He absorbed more knowledge than the first Britannica contained—and enters oblivion without an evident impress on literature, the arts, or practical sciences.

Like a limpet, he attached himself to one place, and filtered the passing tides of history.

It requires eighty quarts of water daily to nourish an oyster. It took over half a century's reading to appease Kemp's insatiate thirst for education.

Apparently, the two might have changed roles, so far as we have inherited from his existence.

Information has no earthly use until it is turned into win-formation.

The utility of facts lies in their application To know everything in print, gives a man precisely the market value of the books themselves—unless he can energize their substance to accelerate contemporary thought, brush the cobwebs from misunderstanding, or furnish others with method and inspiration.

He accumulated wealths enough to rebuild empires, re-create industries and magnify possibility.

He collected toll from all ages, and returned nothing to society. He knew everything libraries had gleaned, but never put a bit of it to work.

Nicholas Murray Butler, (of the same University Mr. Kemp so sedulously attended) presided at a recent dinner to the seven Abou Ben Adams, whose efforts have most benefited their generation, and took pains to note that there wasn't a college graduate in the lot.

The three R's seem sufficient training for any objective—provided one acquires the three P's too, purpose, precision, and perseverance.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Feb. 20.—New York is taking no chances on out-Chicagoing Chicago's boom-boom. A recent order affecting all taxicabs was convincing enough it was alarmed over gang warfare. Those "necking" taxis with only tiny peephole windows at the side are no longer permitted to roam the highways.

They must have regulation size windows in back and side so passengers may be seen from the sidewalk. Several machine gun episodes among Broadway racketeers featured the hideaway taxi. After a heavy barrage, the gunmen were able to zip away completely concealed.

Until recently the police gave but little notice to the gangster. He killed only members of rival clans and the police considered it "a good riddance of bad rubbish." But not only does the gangster go outside his own guild; he does not hesitate to murder innocent citizenry in his getaway.

Activities once restricted to the lower East Side have spread to uptown centers, climaxed by several killings in the crowded Times square section. The old-time gangster fought chiefly for neighborhood leadership. The loot consisted in forcing small shopkeepers to buy tickets for phoney balls.

Today they are the polished racketeers moving about in Tuxedoed elegance, sharing in million dollar spoils of bootlegging, rum running and dope selling. There are any number who make from one hundred thousand to a half million yearly, actually living in the smooth and valeted ease of the Fashionable Fifties.

The fly-blown barber shop, candy parlor and pool hall rendezvous have been exchanged for the ringside glitter of the smart night clubs with a $5 couvert charge and other triviata scaled accordingly. The Johnny Spanishes, Gyp the Bloods, Monk Eastmans and Kid Twists in sweaters and caps are gone.

Police say there are at least 20,000 of the new gangsters, who are affable enough until their "territories" are invaded, and then they "hop-up" on dope and their machine guns blaze death and destruction. The most highly coveted bootleg area is east of Fifth avenue between Forty-fifth street and Sixtieth.

They whisper of a celebrated man involved in a sinister scandal who showed the white feather and sacrificed the reputation of an innocent wife. He left the country for a few months for things to blow over. Upon his return he visited his club, one of the ancient and starchy shrines of aristocracy. When he passed through the portals, as though by concerted action, every member present put on his hat and coat and walked out. They were followed by the servants. Standing about in the sudden desolation and in utter amazement for a few moments, the unwelcome member finally caught the idea and departed. The servants returned and opened every window as though to cleanse it of a foul atmosphere.

Another yarn concerns a lady who won a certain eminence in entertainment fields. At her home on Long Island several years ago when she was at the peak of her career, she was visited by a group of convivial gentlemen friends. Starting early, they were unable to find flower shops open. So passing along Third avenue, they stepped into a funeral parlor and acquired a gates ajar set piece along with several other somber designs, thinking it a good joke. When they presented them to her, she fell in a swoon and was revived in a state of hysteria. She believed them omens of disaster. And thus they proved. A few weeks later she was involved in a Page One scandal which cost her her fortune and robbed her of popularity.

CONTRAST

BECAUSE of rain men greet the sun
With quickened joy when storm is done.
Because of winter's sleet and snow,
More joyously March pansies grow.
Because of loss then doubly dear
The ranks of victory appear.
And so the wise can always find
Grief's self not wholly grim, unkind
For contrast heightens every phase
Of life's swift-flowing, changeful days.
And all the empty years I knew
Made rarer still the gift of you!
